Proverb Problem No. 15 On Second Page of Today's Issue

RUSSIANS WILL PLACE ORDERS

Coming to Pittsburgh to Buy Machinery to Modernize Their Plants.

BIG TRADE TO OPEN

Whichever Way War Ends This District Will Benefit in Way of Contracts.

YANKEE GOODS WILL TRIUMPH

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, Nov. 20.

Two prominent Russian iron and steel manufacturers are now here en route for Pittsburgh for the purpose of placing some important contracts.

The principal purchaser will be Andrew J. Matraszek, manager of the Orscha iron works, one of the largest in the Muscovite empire, who will buy equipment for installment in his works with a view to manufacturing wire, wire nails, horseshoe nails, welded chains, shovels, forks, etc. The other visitor is Jules Gonjon, one of the chief manufacturers of iron in Moscow. He will buy considerable machinery etc., for the modernizing and extension of his plant.

Big Orders Will Be Closed.

It is expected in local machinery circles that some big orders will be closed, practically immediately, for machine tools, cranes, etc., which will serve as equipment for the St. Petersburg arsenals. Pittsburgh manufacturers may look for some substantial orders.

M. Lergey Friede of the M. L. Friede Company, one of the largest handlers of American machinery in the Muscovite empire, returned recently to New York, where he was caught at the outbreak of the war, his house at Port Arthur being demolished over his head by Japanese shells.

M. Friede, who supplied the Russian government in the far east with considerable of her munitions, besides securing for the United States the contracts for the rails and equipment, principally of Pittsburgh manufacturers, of the Chinese Eastern railroad system, has been appointed foreign agent of Russia's far eastern lines with special instructions to arrange with American railroads for through bills of lading from every part of the United States to every habitated village of Manchuria and Siberia.

Hopes to See It Accomplished.

Whichever side wins in the present conflict, Russia hopes, M. Friede says, to see this accomplished, and the immense freighters recently built for service on the Pacific acting as great ferry boats connecting the Pacific terminals of the transcontinental railroad systems of Asia and America.

Speaking of the possibilities of American commerce with Manchuria as a result of the Russo-Japanese war, M. Friede said: "The war, no matter on whose side victory rests, should result in an unprecedented flow of orders to the United States, especially to the Pittsburgh district, for reconstruction material. I have spent the last eight years traveling in the United States and Manchuria, studying for Russia the practical needs of Manchuria and our ability to supply them. Never have American prospects appeared brighter in that region, if the American manufacturers will take time by the forelock and prepare now to supply the victors and vanquished with the thousands of implements and commodities they will need and demand for immediate delivery.

Yankee Goods Will Triumph.

"Once more Yankee goods will drive everything before them, as was the case

TWELVE DIE IN BROOKLYN FIRE

TWO MORE WILL DIE

CAUSE OF BLAZE UNKNOWN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Smothered before they could reach the rear fire escape in a burning tenement building at 186 Troutman street, Brooklyn, 12 persons met death shortly before 2 o'clock this morning.

Two entire families, those of Maranio Triolo and Charles Polognio, are wiped out, the last living member of each being now in a hospital with no hope of their recovery.

THE DEAD:

MARANIO TRIOLO, WIFE AND THREE CHILDREN.

MARIA AMBROSIO AND HER 18-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER.

MARY GALIGONI, aged 18.

LORARIA GROSSEPPI, aged 30.

FATALLY BURNED.

CHARLES POLOGNIO, aged 33.

TONY TRIOLO, aged 13.

Although, in the opinion of the coroner, all the dead were suffocated, the bodies were badly burned before they could be taken from the ruins by the firemen. The burned tenement house is in the center of a row of three-story tenements, extending the length of the block, and was occupied by Italians.

The fire is supposed to have started in the cellar of the grocery store of Antonio Giambalvos, on the ground floor. The cellar was stored with inflammable material and the flames spread with lightning-like rapidity. All the occupants were asleep at the time and there was considerable delay in sending in the first alarm. The Giambalvos family lived in the rear of the store and succeeded in getting out of the building, but before the occupants on the two other floors were aroused their escape had been cut off. Before the firemen arrived the fire had communicated to the adjoining tenement, but here the occupants had sufficient warning and all escaped.

Crowds Hamper Firemen.

The work of the firemen was greatly hampered for a time by the crowds of frightened Italians who filled the streets. The tenants in nearly all the neighboring buildings dragged their household goods out of the buildings and with them blocked the way of the fire apparatus.

All the bodies were found in the rear room of the third floor, and it was evident all had been suffocated in their effort to reach the fire escape at the back of the building. The two who were rescued were found in the lower hallway soon after the firemen reached the scene. Working their way through the building the rescuers discovered the heap of dead on the third floor and within a short time succeeded in taking out nine bodies, but the last was not found until after 8 o'clock this morning.

In his intervals of consciousness Polognio cries for his wife and children, but the physicians fear the knowledge of their death will kill him and have not told him of their fate.

In their investigation as to the origin of the fire the police have been unable to obtain a statement of any kind from neighboring tenants.

A COSTLY FIRE IN CINCINNATI

UNIVERSITY LOSES IN RENTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CINCINNATI, Nov. 20.—Fire caused a loss today in the central part of the city on the south side of Fourth, between Walnut and Main streets, and also in Main, near Fourth, approximating $700,000. It started about noon in an abandoned building in the rear of the Pounsford Stationery Company. There was a strong breeze that caused the flames to spread rapidly, so that with the whole fire department at work it required several hours to get the conflagration under control, and early in the afternoon a general conflagration was apprehended. The loss on the several five-story buildings was $140,000, distributed as follows: McMicken estate, $75,000; Rudolph Wurlitzer, $45,000; Baker estate, $10,000; Sammet Bros., $10,000; J. Frank Jones, $5,000. The nine-story St. Paul building stopped the fire westward, and was damaged about $500. But little was saved east of the St. Paul building to Main street. As the McMicken estate rents all went to the University of Cincinnati, that institution is a heavy loser.

The heaviest losses were on stocks of merchandise, as follows: The Rudolph Wirlitzer Company, pianos and musical instruments, $200,000, insurance, $220,000; the Pounsford Stationery Company, $60,000; F. A. Schwaill & Sons, manufacturers of glassware and bottle supplies, $55,000; Queen City window glass works, $40,000; the Loring Andrews Company, jewelry manufacturers, $45,000; Sammet Bros., tailors, $7,000; Thomas Kennedy, type machinery, $15,000; J. M. Ellers & Co., $15,000; F. H. Berning & Sons, tobacco, $15,000; Bensinger Bros., $5,000; Black Publishing Company, $5,000; Kineon Coal Company, $2,000; Thompson Stationery Company, $2,000; George Schmerhus & Sons, tailors, $2,000; Beta Theta Phi, $1,000; John F. Hugo, printer, $1,000; the Cincinnati Blue Print Company, $1,000; John Holland's gold pen factory, $1,000.

ONE KILLED; ONE STABBED.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., Nov. 20. (Special.)—Anthony Martin was stabbed to death on the street here today at noon by Burnie Coon, son of Councilman John Coon. Martin and Samuel Rittenhouse while walking along the street, stopped a negro and asked him for a match. Coon was passing in the opposite direction and he made the remark that no gentleman would ask a negro for a match. The men came to blows and Coon stabbed Martin to death. Coon also plunged his knife into Rittenhouse, making an ugly wound in the back, but he will recover.

Coon walked up street with the bloody knife in his hand and surrendered to the police. He is now in jail.

CREW LANDS HALF NAKED.

Steamer Burns on Lake Erie and Those Aboard, Aroused from Sleep, Escape in Boat.

SANDUSKY, O., Nov. 20.—The coal steamer Philip Minch, on its way from Fairport to Sandusky, O., was burned to the water's edge about eight miles east of Marblehead, at midnight, last night.

The crew of 17 men was forced to abandon the burning boat, while several miles out in the lake, and reached Sandusky in an exhausted condition, many of them half naked because of having been aroused from sleep. The fire started in the stern of the boat from a cause not determined. Capt. B. A. Benson ordered the men off in a yawl boat at 2 o'clock Sunday morning.

PITTSBURGH MAN UNDER ARREST

CAUGHT AFTER A HOT CHASE

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Press Building.
PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 20.

In a daring attempt to rob a guest of the Bingham house, whose room he entered while the occupant was asleep, this morning, William Quinn, who says he lives in Pittsburgh, was captured after an exciting chase through the hotel corridors. The pursuer in the chase was attired only in a night robe. The name of the guest was not made public.

The room in which the attempted robbery took place is on the third floor. The thief made for the stairway. He went down in long jumps and the guest, bent on recovering his property, followed. As the man ran through the hallways the commotion was heard by House Detective Murray, who grabbed the fugitive. Quinn was searched and a wallet containing $100 and several articles of jewelry belonging to the guests were found. The prisoner was locked up at the city hall.

When examined Quinn said he came from Pittsburgh this morning without money and decided to rob the hotel. He said he found the door of the room in which he was discovered open. This is denied and a skeleton key found upon the prisoner is believed to have unlocked the door. The police believe that he is an important catch.

BUILDINGS ARE FIRED AND LYNCHING THREATENED

Army of Men Are Parading the Streets of an Ohio Village to Protect Property.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ZANESVILLE, O., Nov. 20.—Four fires, all undoubtedly of incendiary origin, three early this morning and the last one this evening, have stirred Roseville, a village of 2,500 inhabitants, until 250 armed men are parading the streets and alleys tonight to defend their properties. The series of three fires this morning nearly ended in the lynching of Clifford Jackson, aged 38 years, who is in the city jail here to be arraigned on a charge of arson.

Only through the efforts of the Rev. Luther J. Smith, who spoke from the new town hall steps and implored the angry citizens not to smirch the town's fair name, was the stringing-up of Jackson prevented. Fire Marshal Morgan visited Roseville today and arrested Jackson and an alleged accomplice, Charles Casner. The fourth fire broke out tonight after Jackson was brought to Zanesville.

The fire marshal ordered by telephone the arrest of another suspect this evening, and Roseville's mayor refused to comply, fearing a lynching. Three barns and a cottage were fired, with a total loss of $2,600.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—A news agency report from Brussels states that rumors are afloat at Antwerp that the Red Star line steamer Kroonland foundered in mid-ocean. Officials of the company here deny all knowledge of the alleged disaster and discredit the rumors.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The officials of the Red Star line brand as malicious the rumor of the Kroonland foundering. They discredit the report and declare the Kroonland is not due here until Monday night and as vessels arriving report heavy weather, she may not get here until Tuesday.

TWO KILLED IN COLLISION

FIRE ADDS TERRORS

Two Drovers Who Were Pinioned in the Debris Met a Shocking Fate.

FRENZIED CATTLE WERE SHOT

Two men were killed and a car filled with cattle was burned in a collision between two sections of an east-bound stock train at Wyland station on the Wheeling division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at 6:23 o'clock last night. The tracks were blockaded for several hours, delaying fast express trains between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. The victims of the accident are:

FRANK M'COY, aged 40, of New Concord, a drover; married and leaves a widow; he died soon after being taken from the wrecked cars.

S. E. WILSON, aged 42, of New Concord, O.; drover, married and leaves a widow and five children; was burned to death.

McCoy and Wilson were riding in a caboose on the rear of the first section and were pinioned in the wreckage when the locomotive hauling the second section crashed into the forward train. The splintered woodwork caught fire and Wilson, who was seriously maimed, was burned to death before rescuers could save him. His body was almost incinerated.

McCoy was caught between the caboose and the rear car of the first train, his leg being pinned down tightly. Members of the train crew were compelled to cut off the leg to save him from being burned to death.

The cattle caught in the doomed cars met a more merciful death. When it was seen that the brutes were crippled and would be consumed by the fire, the trainmen and farmers surrounded the burning cars and shot all the animals which were endangered. The maddened cattle on both trains seemed to appreciate the calamity and their bellowing was an awful accompaniment to the crackling of the flames and the hissing of scalding steam.

The train was filled with cattle consigned to Pittsburgh stock yards. At Wyland, 27 miles west of Pittsburgh, the first section stopped to take water. The second section, which was following close behind, overtook the first standing on a siding.

Engineer Blackburn of the second section says that he did not see the first section until he was within about five car lengths. Realizing that a collision was inevitable the engine crew of the second section jumped just as the crash came. Conductor Conaway of the first section heard the second section coming. He ran to the rear to warn five drovers riding in the caboose, but was too late. Seemingly the drovers saw the second section coming and attempted to get off. Three of them escaped by a narrow margin, but McCoy and Wilson were caught as they came through the door.

FOREST FIRE RAGING IN ALLEGHENY COUNTY

Two Residences Are Destroyed and Much Valuable Property Is Threatened.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

MONONGAHELA, PA., Nov. 20.—Thousands of dollars' worth of damage has already been done and more property is threatened, by a destructive forest fire which was started by a spark from a Pittsburgh & Lake Erie engine this afternoon across the river from here, on the Allegheny county side.

John Saddler's house and all its contents were destroyed, with a loss of $1,500, and his barn with crops and farming implements were burned, with a loss of $700. John Thomas' home and furnishings were partially destroyed, with a loss of about $500. Other homes and the tipple of the Mongah mine are in the path of the flames and desperate efforts are being made to save them.

The fire started this afternoon, at a point directly across from Riverview, a village adjoining Monongahela. The high hillside, which is skirted by the Monongahela river, with the railroad running along its bank, is covered with dry leaves. These were readily ignited by a spark and within a half-hour after the train passed the whole hillside was aflame.

Owners of homes in the neighborhood gathered to fight the fire, but their work was almost futile. Tonight the sky is aglow from the acres of burning leaves and timber. The band of fire fighters has been augmented by men from Monongahela and from the hilltop across the river. They will work all night to save buildings from destruction. At the Mongah mine a special force of men has been set at work to keep the flames from the works.

FORMER GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATE IS KILLED

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., Nov. 20.—S. H. Piersol, member of the Populist national executive committee, who had been his party's candidate for governor, was killed by a Baltimore & Ohio engine today while walking toward Parkersburg from his home in the country.

F. A. Heinze Enjoined.

BUTTE, MONT., Nov. 20.—Judge Clancey today issued a restraining order preventing F. A. Heinze from working the Minnie Healey mine here. The appeal from a decision of Judge Clancey awarding this mine to Heinze is now pending in the supreme court of Montana. By the closing down of the Minnie Healey, 1,000 men will be affected.

LOUD CHEERS BY CATHOLICS

Address of President at a Church Anniversary Well Received.

BREADTH OF CHARITY

SUCCESSES OF A CENTURY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—President Roosevelt made an address today at the 110th anniversary celebration at St. Patrick's church, and the dedication of Carroll hall, the new parochial buildings and parish school. The Rev. Dr. D. J. Stafford, rector of St. Patrick's, acted as the master of ceremonies. Cardinal Gibbons, several archbishops and other dignitaries of the Catholic church attended the exercises, the former making an address immediately preceding that of the president. H. B. F. MacFarland, president of the board of commissioners of the district of Columbia, was the concluding speaker.

The addresses were made from a balcony on the second floor of the rectory and the audience gathered in the streets. The intersection of Tenth and G streets, Northwest, was packed with people and the crowd extended fully a square north and south, east and west from the rectory. Dr. Stafford, in his opening remarks, referred to the fact that in the century and more that St. Patrick's church had worked in Washington, no honor had come to it so great as the visit of President Roosevelt.

Cheer After Cheer for the President.

The Knights of Columbus formed a guard of honor for the president, but a squad of policemen was necessary to open the way through the crowded streets. Cheer after cheer went up as the president and his escort appeared. He was met at his carriage by Father Stafford and as he passed into the rectory, a children's choir of 200 voices, stationed in front of the church, sang hymns.

Before the ceremonies were begun, the president was shown through the handsome new rectory. When he stepped out on the balcony he was cheered loudly, the demonstration doubling when Cardinal Gibbons took a place by the president's side and invited him to be seated.

Dr. Stafford, the first speaker, told of the work of St. Patrick's parish, its growth, and its aim for the future. He introduced Cardinal Gibbons, who testified to the value of the parish and gave great credit to the efforts of its rector. Dr. Stafford then introduced President Roosevelt as "the man of even-handed justice, the president of the 'square deal.'"

President Roosevelt thanked the rector and joined in the laugh which preceded prolonged cheering. Then he spoke as follows:

Founded Before the Capital.

"It is a great pleasure to me to be present at the dedication of the school, hall and rectory of this parish, a parish whose 110th anniversary we also now celebrate; for this parish was founded six years before the national capital was placed in the present District of Columbia. (Cheers and applause). I am glad indeed to have been introduced, Cardinal Gibbons, by you, the spiritual representative in a peculiar sense of that Bishop Carroll who played so illustrious a part in the affairs of the church, and whose kinsfolk played as illustrious a part in the affairs of the nation at the dawning of this government. In greeting all of you I wish to say that I am especially glad to see the children present. (Cheers and applause). You know I believe in children. I want to see enough of them and of the right kind. (Applause.)

"I wish today, in the very brief remarks that I have to make, to dwell upon this thought—the thought that ought to be in the mind of every man and woman here, the thought that while in this country we need wise laws, honestly and fearlessly executed, and while we cannot afford to tolerate anything but the highest standard in the public service of the government, yet that in the last analysis, the future of the country must depend upon the quality of the individual home, of the individual man or woman in that home. The future of this country depends upon the way in which the average man and the average woman in it does his or her duty, and that very largely depends upon the way in which the average boy or girl is brought up. (Cheers and applause.)

An Important Work.

"Therefore, a peculiar responsibility rests upon those whose life work it is to see to the spiritual welfare of our people and upon those who make it their life work to try to train the citizens of the future so that they shall be worthy of that future. In wishing you well today, I wish you well in doing the most important work which is allotted to any of our people to do. The rules of good citizenship are tolerably simple. The trouble is not in finding them out, the trouble is in living up to to them after they have been found out. I think we all of us know fairly well what qualities they are which make up the type of character we like to see in man or wife, son or daughter; but I am afraid we do not always see them as well developed as we would like to. I wish to see in the average American citizen the development of the two sets of qualities which we can roughly indicate as sweetness and strength—the qualities on the one hand which makes the man able to hold his own, and those which on the other hand make him jealous for the rights of others just as much as for his own rights. We must have both sets of qualities. In the first place, the man must have the power to hold his own.

"You probably know that I do not care very much for the coward or the moral weakling. I want each of you boys, and the girls just as much, and each of you young men and you young women, to have the qualities without which people may be amiable and pleasant while things go well, but without which they cannot succeed in times of stern trial. I wish to see in the man manliness, in the woman womanliness.

Bravery and Devotion.

I wish to see courage, perseverance, the willingness to face work, to face, you men, if it is necessary, danger, the determination not to shrink back when temporarily beaten in life, as each one will be now and then, but to come up again and wrest triumph from defeat. I want to see you men strong men and brave men, and in addition I wish to see each man of you feel that his strength and his courage but make him the worse unless to that strength and courage are joined the qualities of tenderness toward those he loves, who are dependent upon him, and of right dealing with all his neighbors.

Finally, I want to congratulate all of us here on certain successes that we have achieved in the century and a quarter that has gone by of our American life. We have difficulties enough, and we are a long ways short of perfection. I do not see any immediate danger of our growing too good; there is ample room for effort yet left. But we have achieved certain results, and we have succeeded in measurably realizing certain ideals. We have grown to accept it as an axiomatic truth of our American life, that the man is to be treated on his worth as a man, without regard to the accidents of his position (applause); that this is not a government designed to favor the rich man as such, or the poor man as such, but that it is designed to favor every man, rich or poor, if he is a decent man who acts fairly by his fellows. (Cheers and applause.) We have grown to realize that part of the foundations upon which our liberty rests is the right of each man to worship his Creator according to the dictates of his conscience, and the duty of each man to respect his fellow who so worships Him. (Cheers and applause.)

With a Broad Charity.

And, oh, my countrymen, one of the best auguries for the future of this country, for the future of this mighty and majestic nation of ours, lies in the fact that we have grown to regard one another, that we brothers have grown to regard one another, with a broad and kindly charity, and to realize that the field for human endeavor is wide, that the field for charitable, philanthropic, religious work is wide, and that while a corner of it remains untilled we do a dreadful wrong if we fail to welcome the work done in that field by every man, no matter what his creed, provided only he works with a lofty sense of his duty to God and his duty to his neighbor. (Cheers and applause.)

After a speech by Commissioner MacFarland, the choir sang "America" and a number of hymns. The president joined in the singing and the audience was not slow to follow. A number of the young church officials followed the president to his carriage. He shook hands with them and called heartily as he drove away: "Good-by, boys. I am glad to have been with you."

WEST VIRGINIA LEADERS CONFER AT WASHINGTON

Tax Question and Vacant Internal Revenue Collectorship Are Discussed.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—There was a conference here today of Republican leaders of West Virginia to consider the tax question that caused so much anxiety during the campaign just closed, and other questions. There were present Senator Elkins, State Chairman Elliott Northcott, Gov. A. B. White and Gov.-elect W. M. O. Dawson.

Among other subjects discussed was the vacant internal revenue collectorship and there was a sentiment manifested in favor of W. S. Glasscock of Morgantown, secretary of the state committee. Secret Service Operative Frank H. Tyree is also a candidate for the place and his excellent work during the campaign gives his candidacy claim for consideration. However, it was stated there would not likely be an appointment made until after March 4.

Mr. Dawson, when asked if anything would be done toward changing the tax laws enacted at the special session of the legislature last summer, said:

"Some slight changes will likely be made with the next meeting of the legislature, but they will not be radical. We are satisfied that the laws are good ones and that they will prove beneficial to the state. A tax commissioner is to be appointed next week, but I do not know who will be named. That will be done by Gov. White." L. W. STRAYER.

SQUIRREL HILL'S SPECTACULAR FIRE

LARGE MAPLE TREES IN FLAMES

A large two-story frame stable, belonging to Charles E. Clapp, at the corner of Murray Hill avenue and Wilkins street, was totally destroyed by fire shortly before midnight. Three valuable horses, three carriages, a runabout, harness and other equipment were consumed in the flames. The loss will approximate $10,000.

A servant in the Clapp residence saw flames in the barn about 11:15 p. m., and informed Mr. Clapp, who sent in an alarm. Because of the steep grade on Murray Hill avenue, from Fifth avenue to Wilkins street, it was almost impossible for the heavy fire engines to reach the scene. The necessarily slow response allowed the flames to gain headway rapidly and, fanned by a brisk breeze, they had soon enveloped the entire building.

It is not known what caused the fire, but presumably it had its origin on the first floor, as it was there the flames were burning most fiercely when the fire was discovered. Mr. Clapp made an effort to enter the barn for the purpose of saving the lives of his horses, but at the door he was driven back by a rush of flames. Tethered in the stalls, the frightened animals cried piteously, but those who gathered about the burning building were powerless to give them aid.

To add to the excitement, several large maple trees standing close to the building became ignited and their dry branches and twigs made excellent fuel for a most spectacular fire. In the rear of the barn a large vacant piece of ground extends several hundred feet back along Wilkins street. This ground is covered with underbrush and tall grass. This caught fire, and for a time those living in the vicinity feared the spread of the flames would be serious. The arrival of the fire apparatus at this time resulted in allaying the fears of adjacent property owners, and the small prairie fire was soon extinguished.

The Clapp residence is but a short distance from where the barn stood, and it looked for a time that the wind would drive the flames to the roof of the house. Servants from neighboring residences formed a bucket brigade before the arrival of the firemen, and drenched the roof of the house.

BRIDE FIGHTS FOR HUSBAND'S FREEDOM

Married in Jail, He Has Been in Custody in Different Cities.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—Hugh C. Risdon was arraigned before Magistrate Kochersperger today charged with being a fugitive from justice. He was arrested at Atlanta. It was the custom of a choir from a local church to visit the jail every Sunday. Risdon, who is a Philadelphian, was attracted by the face of one of the choir girls. The pretty singer spoke a few words of cheer to him which led to an acquaintance and later betrothal and marriage in the jail. Then the young bride went out to do battle for her husband's freedom. The girl's family was one of influence, and when pressure was brought to bear he was released. The couple in a few days left Atlanta and went to Washington.

In Washington he was arrested but secured bail. He went to Baltimore, where he was rearrested at the request of the Atlanta officials, but a technicality prevented issuance of requisition papers. Coming to Philadelphia with his bride he was taken into custody and will be held to await the arrival of requisition papers. Mrs. Risdon has secured legal assistance and will fight for her husband's freedom.

CHESTER D. POTTER.

ENDOWMENT PROJECT IS INDORSED BY PRESIDENT

Favors Plan to Raise $2,000,000 to Give Aid to the University of Virginia.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—A movement to raise an endowment fund for the historic University of Virginia, has been organized under the direction of an advisory council of a hundred or more prominent men representing all parts of the United States. This famous old school was founded by Thomas Jefferson and the fund, which is hoped to eventually amount to $2,000,000, will be named "The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Fund." The university has never had an endowment adequate to its needs, and since the civil war it has been much hampered by lack of resources. Among the members of the council are Chief Justice Fuller, Grover Cleveland, Elihu Root, Secretary Taft, Admiral Dewey, Robert T. Lincoln, St. Clair McKelway, Cardinal Gibbons, Richard Olney, Dr. Gates, Weir Mitchell and numerous others, while the late Senator Hoar was also a member.

President Roosevelt has indorsed the project in a letter to Thomas Nelson Page, president of the alumni association of the university, in which he said it would be a good thing if the people of this country, north and south, east and west, should come forward and establish a Jefferson fund for the university as a fit culmination for the great celebration of the Louisiana purchase of the present year. He further said: "Jefferson wrote his own epitaph to be inscribed on the granite shaft that marks his grave at Monticello. In this epitaph he did not recite the offices he had held, but the three deeds he had done which he esteemed of most worth to his fellow men, and the epitaph runs as follows:

"'Here was buried Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of American Independence, the statute of Virginia for religious freedom and father of the University of Virginia.'

"I earnestly hope for the success of your movement."

PLENTY OF WATER SOON.

Pennsylvania Company Expects to Turn on a Supply This Afternoon.

Supt. W. C. Hawley of the Pennsylvania Water Company said last night that the supply from the company's reservoirs would probably be resumed this afternoon. The work of placing a new piston rod in engine No. 2 at Wildwood was completed yesterday at noon.

Water carrying was general in Wilkinsburg, Edgewood and Swissvale homes yesterday. Two fire alarms were sent in to the Wilkinsburg fire department, but the blaze in each case proved to be only burning rubbish.

Charged With Robbery.

BUTLER, Nov. 20.—(Special.)—County Detective Robert Barnes and Constable Thomas Campbell of Slippery Rock last evening arrested a young man named Pryor, who is charged with being one of the gang who robbed and tortured the Elliott sisters and their hired hand at the Elliott homestead in Worth township a few months ago. Pryor was taken before Judge Galbreath and his bail was fixed at $500.

Heavy Explosion Shook Dalny.

CHEFOO, Nov. 21.—The general attack on Port Arthur was resumed November 18 or 19, according to the report of persons arriving here today from Dalny. November 16 a peculiarly heavy explosion shook every ship lying at Dalny. The explosion was ascribed to the blowing up of land mines or a magazine.

HEAD OF RED CROSS ACCUSES JAPANESE

Gen. Balashoff Declares They Have Forced Abandonment of Hospital Ships.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

CHEFOO, Nov. 20.—Gen. Balashoff, the head of the Red Cross at Port Arthur, sent to the Associated Press on the torpedo destroyer Rastoropny, which arrived here from Port Arthur, a personal letter, charging that the Japanese have deliberately disregarded the obligations of the Geneva and Hague conventions.

He says that they have compelled the abandonment by the Russians of three plainly marked hospital ships and that the wounded who were aboard the half sunken steamer Andara also had to be removed. These ships, says Gen. Balashoff, were anchored where they did not interfere with the Japanese fire against the Russian warships. He further says that the Japanese, who used balloons to direct their fire, and who drop their shells with minute accuracy into the harbor, cannot mistake the hospital ships, and he charges that they deliberately drive the wounded from the ships for the purpose of sinking the vessels.

MILLER FOUND NOT GUILTY.

Jeannette Doctor Was Accused of Causing Girl's Death—Another Trial on Similar Charge Today.

GREENSBURG, Nov. 20.—(Special.)—After deliberating for almost 12 hours, the jury returned a verdict early this morning finding Dr. J. C. Miller of Jeannette not guilty of causing the death of Dollie Tyger of Gypsy, Indiana county, at Barnesboro last May. The girl made a dying statement in which it was claimed by the commonwealth she said Dr. Miller was the physician, but this statement it was brought out at the trial, had been stolen from the office of Justice of the Peace Speece of Barnsboro.

Dr. Miller's trial on a similar charge, in which Miss Julia Gemery of Jeannette is mentioned, is scheduled for tomorrow, but it may not come to a hearing on account of this morning's verdict.

The Sicilian Prince is 14 days out from Italian ports, and has about 600 Italian emigrants in the steerage and 12 cabin passengers.

RUSSIANS TO PLACE ORDERS

four years ago when America astonished the world by laying down Pennsylvania-built locomotives at Port Arthur before even estimates could be secured from Germany.

"Then there were no direct lines of steamers from the United States to the Russian far eastern ports, freight rates were extortionate, and American machinery and supplies were sent via England, Germany and Japan, reaching their destinations as exports of these countries to Russian Asia, the nameplates often removed from the machinery to be replaced with other country's through which shipments were made. Now the largest freight carriers in the world are in commission on the Pacific, and freight rates are half what they used to be. With Manchuria kept open to the world and direct shipments made possible from any part of the United States to any portion of this vastly rich, progressive and populous country, America should fetch the homes in Manchuria.

"As to the volume of business we can hope for in Manchuria," continued M. Friede, "it is conservative to say that since my first visit to that part of the world in 1896, when I met the Russian engineers sent out to survey the Chinese Eastern railroad near the present city of Harbin, Russia and the Russians have spent a billion roubles (about $500,000,000) in Manchuria.

"An enormous sum must be expended for the purpose of rebuilding the railroad and preparing a vast area for settlement. Manchuria will be opened up to the commerce of the world as never before. Russians, Manchurians and Japanese have begun to develop the rich gold mines of the interior, ordering their heavy machinery from Pittsburgh and vicinity. Flour mills, the first of which I sent out from America five years ago as an experiment, now turn out sufficient flour even for export purposes.

"American agricultural machinery, made largely in Pennsylvania, now gathers the harvests, while Yankee stills turn the corn into vodka, and in the cities western ice-making machinery turns out solid lumps of comfort in summer.

"In cities such as Harbin, that spring up practically in a few days, Pittsburgh made construction tools and steel girders and, in fact, the entire country might easily be Americanized if American manufacturers and merchants only hold themselves in readiness to seize their advantages and make a grand re-entry at the right moment. Manchuria is the richest and most progressive portion of China.

"The Mukden authorities recently asked for estimates for electric traction, telephone and lighting systems, and other Manchu native cities are preparing to follow suit. Considerable Westinghouse equipment is already installed in Manchuria, particularly on the Chinese Eastern railroad."

Scaffold Fell Upon Him.

Walter Gibbs was working yesterday on a scaffold on the Pennsylvania railroad bridge crossing Fifth avenue near Hamilton avenue. The scaffold broke and he fell, the timbers falling upon him. All his teeth were knocked out and his jaw was fractured. He was taken to the East End hospital. Gibbs is 30 years old. His home is at 9 Middle street, Uniontown.

MAGAZINE AT PORT ARTHUR EXPLODED

Struck by Japanese Shell. Three of Czar's Torpedo Boat Destroyers Missing.

MIKADO'S MEN ARE REPULSED

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

TOKYO, Nov. 20.—A dispatch from the army besieging Port Arthur, dated November 19, says: "During the bombardment, a shell from a Japanese naval gun exploded a Russian magazine near the arsenal. Our operations against all the forts are proceeding as prearranged from Manchurian headquarters. At noon today we shelled the Russian infantry engaged in entrenching east of Reinchiangtun, and also infantry in the rear of the villages, causing them to flee in confusion. In other directions there is no change of note."

CHEFOO, Nov. 20.—Another attack on Etse mountain is expected to occur November 24, according to Chinese who left Dalny yesterday. The Chinese further report that reinforcements for the Japanese continue to arrive. The local Russian consul has received from Port Arthur a letter describing the use by the Japanese of a peculiar missile looking like a long sausage, which the Japanese throw into the trenches. It bursts, giving off an odor so foul that if it is not thrown out of the trenches immediately the soldiers faint. The gas is not fatal.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says that the steamer Lienshing from Chefoo reports that three other Russian torpedo boats left Port Arthur with the destroyer Rastoropny. The Japanese stopped two of them and the fate of the third is unknown.

MUKDEN, Nov. 20.—The Japanese attack on Putiloff hill has demonstrated the efficiency of the Russian defensive work. Two battalions engaged in the attack occupied the first line of the Russian trenches, but at the second line were caught in pits and entanglements and exposed to a galling fire. A Russian bayonet attack completed their demoralization.

TOKYO, Nov. 20.—The increasing activity along the Shakhe river seems to indicate the imminence of another great battle. The Russian feints, evidently intended to draw a Japanese attack, are uniformly repulsed. Army headquarters yesterday received the following report from Field Marshal Oyama's report, dated November 18: "At dawn today a detachment of the enemy made an attack near Hsinglungtun. They were repulsed by us. Since this morning the enemy in the vicinity of Shahke village indirectly bombarded our positions with mortars and field pieces. They have effected no damage." A body of the enemy's infantry were discovered at Hsiamya and Hsiaoyantzu. We shelled them and they fled in confusion to a neighboring village. The enemy have burnt Hsiangiasetzu and villages to the southeast, on the right bank of the river Hun."

PETITION CZAR WITH MUCH VIGOR

Russian Provincial Legislature Wants School Facilities Extended.

THE GOVERNMENT MUST ACT

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 20.—The zemstvo representatives' meeting today adopted the remainder of the memorial almost literally as cabled yesterday, and besides considered several supplementary articles providing for practical co-operation of the zemstvos in the Red Cross work and for extension of school facilities. The vote on the question of the adoption of the memorial stood 88 to 10.

The meeting probably will be continued several days. The memorial and minutes of the meeting will be sent to Prince Sviastopolk-Mirsky for transmission to the emperor. What the result will be is a matter of speculation, but the men who have participated in this meeting are in most cases the most influential and able men in their respective provinces and are resolved to press the movement everywhere with the greatest vigor.

The government's attitude is awaited with breathless interest. The mere fact that a meeting with such a program was permitted, although official auspices were denied it, is unprecedented, but the vigorous character of the memorial adopted and the resolution to push the agitation must compel the government to act. A parting of the ways is again at hand, and the autocracy, it would seem, must once more choose whether the people shall be allowed a voice in the government, for it is inconceivable that it can allow agitation for a convocative elective body to decide whether the time has not come, in the language of the memorial, "for a specially elected body to participate in legislation" without the intention of yielding.

Reactionaries, of course, are horrified at the mere suggestion of anything approaching a parliament or a constitution. All their power and influence already are in the scale, but no matter which way the balance swings the decision is bound to mark an epoch in Russian history.

One thing which must commend itself strongly to the emperor is the fact that the memorial represents the view of able and moderate men who have no sympathy with revolution. They have taken particular pains to discourage the student demonstrations which were planned for Saturday and Sunday in front of the Kazan cathedral, and none occurred.

SMASHED BRIC-A-BRAC.

Capt. McCabe Dodged a Vase and Then Arrested Michael O'Brien.

Michael O'Brien, who lives in Fourth avenue near Ferry street, was arrested last night at the house of Mrs. Hattie Price, 438 Third avenue.

Police Inspector Robinson and Captain McCabe were passing the place and heard the crash of breaking glass, and at the same time Mrs. Price emerged from the door screaming for the police. She told the two officers that a crazy man had taken possession of the upper floors of her house.

As Captain McCabe entered the door of the front room on the second floor a vase whizzed past his head and crashed against the wall. O'Brien quit at once. He had broken a mirror, a lot of bric-a-brac and some of the furniture, the total damage being about $800.

Missing Linen Was Recovered.

The satchel filled with $1,000 worth of linen, etc., lost by Miss Roda Nihany, an expert for a New York importing house, was restored yesterday. It was found in Bidwell street by Ralph Reader, a messenger boy, who lives at 325 Frankstown avenue. He took it home. Mrs. Reader and the boy saw an advertisement of the loss in the papers yesterday and took the satchel and contents to Miss Nihany.

GREAT JUBILEE IN CHINATOWN

COSTLY OFFERING TO JOSS

Three thousand people yesterday afternoon witnessed the Chinese jubilee celebrating the formal opening of the Lee Lung Si Tong, at 509 Second avenue. Fifteen hundred dollars' worth of firecrackers were exploded in honor of the occasion and for an hour the entire downtown section of the city rang with the incessant roar of burning powder. Inside the club rooms the beating of tomtoms and the chanting of oriental songs made weird and fascinating music, which at times rose above the noise of the fireworks like the melancholy wail of agony that breaks forth in the midst of battle.

It was a great day in the local Chinatown. Members of the Lee family of Chinamen from all parts of Western Pennsylvania attended the ceremonies, paid devout homage to the Joss, joined in the music, smoked long-stemmed pipes and drank tea and wine with toasts for endless luck.

At 5 o'clock in the afternoon a long wooden chute was projected from a third story window of the building occupied by the Lee Lung Si Tong. From this firecrackers in strings 30 feet in length were suspended. The fuse at the bottom was ignited and the explosions followed at the rate of 5,000 a minute. The air was filled with flying bits of paper which fell like a shower of red confetti and the entire square facing Second avenue park was filled with a cloud of sulphurous smoke.

A crowd quickly gathered and stood around the street in wonder. Some wag spread the report that Port Arthur had fallen and that all the yellow men in Pittsburgh were rejoicing at the defeat of the Russians. This story was credited by many, who doubtless went home convinced in the belief that Gen. Stoessel had been vanquished. The men who sat at the windows of the Lee Lung Si Tong, however, were not thinking of Port Arthur. Yesterday marked the realization of permanent headquarters for the Pittsburgh branch of the Lee Family Home association, and it was in honor of this event that all the ado was being made.

The shrine room in this local Chinese temple was magnificent beyond adequate description. Before the carved altar were giant vases filled with gorgeous chrysanthemums and peacock tips. Candles lighted up the portrait of the blessed sire and fragrant incense from brass braziers filled the room.

On a carved walnut table was spread an elaborate luncheon, which the Celestials pointed to with pride as a gastronomical offering to the Joss. There was a cake as big as a domestic cheese, filled with evaporated fruits and oriental nuts. Salads, omelettes, fruit and wine abounded. In a corner of the room six Chinese musicians played folk music. When a member entered the room he hurried at once to the squared space before the shrine and clasped his hands like the forsaken heroine in a melodrama. Three times he bowed his head. He could not be accused of worshiping with a long face. His bows were made quickly and with a perfunctory swing, and a smile wreathed his countenance.

This ended the religious ceremony. Ben Lee passed a box of excellent cigars and a reception committee in the corner poured tea and wine. On a side table were eatables spread out after the fashion of a free lunch in a rathskeller. Here everybody stopped to have some refreshments and then joined in chanting songs, which made a consistent accompaniment to the roll of the tomtoms. The jubilee continued until midnight, when it was adjourned with the usual pious ceremony of enthusiasts.

Oldest Residents of the Borough Will Celebrate Happy Event of 50 Years Ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rimmel will celebrate the golden anniversary of their marriage at their home in Dewey avenue, Bridgeville, today. Mr. Rimmel has lived in the borough longer than any other resident.

Mr. Rimmel was born near New Salem, Westmoreland county, January 13, 1832, and when about 13 years old removed with his parents to Pittsburgh. Two years later the family removed to Temperanceville, remaining there two years and then going to Bridgeville, where Mr. Rimmel has lived since.

Mrs. Rimmel, who was Miss Elizabeth Young, was born in Lancaster, Pa., and is 72 years old. In early life her family removed to Allegheny.

Mr. and Mrs. Rimmel were married at Harriotsville, Pa., November 21, 1854. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Jeffery of the Presbyterian church, of which Mr. and Mrs. Rimmel are members. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Rimmel removed to Upper St. Clair township, settling on what is now the main street of Bridgeville. They lived here until the Wabash railroad occupied their farm. Six children were born to them of whom four are living—John Rimmel, a contracting painter of Bridgeville, married; Mrs. Elizabeth Stacey, 127 Lawrence avenue, Elliott, and the Misses Anna and Sadie Rimmel, at home.

Mr. Rimmel was supervisor of Upper St. Clair township for 18 years and also served as constable in the township for 15 years. He is now street commissioner of Bridgeville, and although in his 73d year, is as hale and hearty as an ordinary man of 50 years.

At the celebration to be held today all the children of Mr. Rimmel and six grandchildren will be present, in addition to more than 150 guests from Bridgeville, Carnegie, Upper St. Clair, Pittsburgh and other nearby points. Several guests from the eastern part of the state and some from the western states, will be present, including Mrs. Sallie Palmer of California.

CREATED A FURORE.

Ysaye's Appearance at Philadelphia Last Week Was Notable Event.

Eugene Ysaye, the famous Belgian violinist, who is to give a recital at the Hotel Schenley next Wednesday evening, gave the first concerts of his American tour with the Philadelphia orchestra last Friday and Saturday and created a furore.

"A great throng assembled," so writes William R. Lester, "to hear the chiefest among modern violin virtuosi—to experience rare esthetic delight, which only genius can create and communicate. And they were not disappointed. There was no doubt or hesitation in Ysaye's method and form of interpretation. The marvelous tonal quality, like mystic music from another sphere, commanded the ear and captivated the imagination. Throughout the great hall there ran the indefinite thrill that is felt only when genius and skill combine to publish the works of mighty masters of music."

BOY MURDERER DEAD IN THE PEN

LATER TRIED TO BREAK JAIL

Harry Fisher, aged 22, who was serving 15 years and three months in the Western penitentiary for murder in the second degree, died in that institution yesterday morning from consumption. Fisher was less than 16 years old at the time of his sentence. It is said he knew he would never leave the institution alive, and deliberately violated all the rules of the institution intended to preserve the health of the prisoners.

Fisher was an inmate of the Morganza reform school, and his victim was John C. Stuckrath, a master tailor, employed as an instructor at the school. Young Fisher and several other inmates had planned an escape. On the night in August, 1898, they made a break for liberty. Stuckrath was between them and the exit. Fisher stole silently up to the man from behind and struck him over the head with a club. As Stuckrath fell, Fisher dealt him another crushing blow on the temple, killing him. The noise of the disturbance aroused others, and the plan of escape was frustrated.

Fisher, whose home had been in Allegheny, and James Altiere of New Castle were tried for murder in Washington county. Altiere was acquitted and Fisher pleaded guilty to second degree murder. He was taken to the penitentiary on December 3, 1898. On the night preceding he made an unsuccessful attempt to break jail.

VICTIM OF A ROW.

Three Men Held to Await Result of Injuries to the Fourth.

Peter Graver, aged 35; Mike Manish, aged 34, and Mike Baker, aged 28, all Slavs, are detained in the South Thirteenth street police station to await the result of injuries inflicted upon Rade Gottoson of Muriel street.

Policeman Charles Freeborn, who made the arrests, says that shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night the prisoners and the victim became mixed up in an altercation at South Fourteenth and Muriel streets. The officer saw one of the prisoners strike Gottoson over the head with a short club, felling him to the ground. In the general mixup Freeborn lost sight of the assailant and the arrest of all followed.

The hospital authorities state that while Gottosou's injuries are serious he will recover. Some uncertainty exists regarding the victim's name, the hospital people giving it as Samuel Kooch, while the police have it Gottosou. All are foreigners and will not talk.

Used a Hatchet on Locust.

While Frank Bunk pinioned Andy Locust's arms to his sides and held him firmly, Andy Switski struck Locust twice on the head with a hatchet, during a Polish celebration in a house in the rear of 1614 Penn avenue, late Saturday night. The trio were arrested and held over until Locust is able to make informations against them. Locust has two ugly gashes in his head.

Our Message to Christmas Shoppers.

The rule is, notwithstanding all and singular know they have to purchase gift things, we say the rule is to defer the matter till the last moment.

Like all rules, this one has its exceptions—a great many people select early; but there are not as many as there should be.

We desire to urge upon all who are prepared to buy now the obvious importance of getting their Christmas shopping over as soon as possible.

While there is fascination in shopping when crowds are large, yet it must be borne in mind there are thousands and thousands of people who from force of circumstances are compelled to wait until a week or so—even the last day—prior to Christmas before selecting their gifts, while other thousands can just as well as not employ the present for their holiday shopping. It is to the latter we make the appeal to shop early.

Besides, early shoppers have the advantage of unbroken variety. This is especially advantageous in selecting gift articles from imported goods—goods that cannot be duplicated under any circumstances in time for the Christmas season. When any import line is sold out that is the end of it.

Will those who can, kindly act upon the suggestion?

We are completely ready in every department for Christmas shoppers with far larger variety than we ever carried, and with an augmented force of salespeople capable of waiting upon you cheerfully.

Monday, November 21, 1904.

A proposition has been made to compromise the Brushton station controversy by the removal of the Wilkinsburg depot to Penn avenue. This plan has features to commend it, as it will make a more equitable division of the distances between Homewood and Edgewood, but if carried out the condition of a subway passage across the railroad should be imposed. One of the chief troubles at Brushton has been the grade crossing over the large number of tracks there. The crossing at the present Wilkinsburg station is inconvenient for the railroad and dangerous to the public, and so is that at Penn avenue. If the station is moved conditions can, at least, be mitigated by the creation of a subway.

The resignation of Col. Frank J. Hecker from the Panama canal commission was received with regret by the president, who believed in his fitness. While Mr. Hecker said he was forced to retire on account of his health, it is said that there has been considerable friction between him and his associates. No doubt Panama will be an unhealthy country for some years to come and the Americans interested in canal building must take some risks in going there. But under careful sanitary management health conditions will undoubtedly improve. Col. Hecker was for some time a partner of Gen. Russell A. Alger in the lumber business and has seen something of tropical life, for he served in the war against Spain and his regiment was taken to Cuba.

Charles M. Schwab's determination to make Bethlehem the Essen of the United States is an illustration of the way a really strong man rises superior to circumstances. A year ago Mr. Schwab was the best abused man on two continents. A man of less vigor, courage and ability, under the same conditions, could have been counted "out of the game." Not so Mr. Schwab. His voluntary assumpton of the losses of his friends in United States Shipbuilding put him completely above the class of adventurous promoters. His hard work since in making a field for Bethlehem steel has proven him the man of talent and executive power. It will be strange, indeed, if he does not realize his ambition to make Bethlehem the world's emporium for those products to which it will be devoted.

There seems to be considerable sympathy expressed for Senator Cockrell of Missouri, who is to lose his seat because of the political overturn in his state. Former Secretary Root has even expressed the hope that partisanship might be laid aside so as to return such an efficient public servant to a place where he has proved so useful. Whatever may be said in favor of non-partisanship, public affairs are not run by electing men from the opposing party to such an office as United States senator. Mr. Cockrell was a candidate before the St. Louis convention and has been a strict Democrat, usually arraigned against the Republicans, in spite of his agreeable personal qualities. In consideration of his ability for public service, President Roosevelt offers him his choice of a position upon the isthmian canal commission or the interstate commerce commission.

The account given in a special dispatch to The Gazette from New York of the plans of two Russian iron masters who are on their way to Pittsburgh does not sound as there was much expectation of a long continuance of the present war. The anticipations of active demand for American machinery in Manchuria are doubtless well founded and ultimately the war will have the effect of accelerating development of that part of Asia. It is the opinion of most thoughtful observers that the war will end with a partition of interests which will leave Japan in control of Korea and Southern Manchuria, while Russia will retain Northern Manchuria and will hereafter cultivate friendly relations with Japan. Thus the resources of both these great powers will be concentrated upon Manchurian development, providing a great market and offering many opportunities to American enterprise.

An interesting feature of the session of the New York state conference of charities at Rochester was the explanation made of the new law which goes into effect in New York state next January, which will give the whole system a more liberal trial than it has ever had before in this country. The building at Hart's island is then to be known as the New York city reformatory of misdemeanors and anyone between 16 and 30 years of age, convicted in New York city for any offense except felony, can be committed there for not more than three years. The time is not to be given in the sentence, which will depend entirely on the conduct of the prisoner as determined by a parole board, composed of the commissioner of correction, four judges chosen by the court and four citizens appointed by the mayor. Each inmate is to be informed of his standing at least once a month and is always to have access to some member of the parole board. It is believed that this liberal system will have a beneficial effect on the offender who is not steeped in crime and may save him to society.

River Improvement Prospects.

While the annual convention of the Ohio River Improvement association has passed into history, the time to work for its object is just coming. The general plan of improving the Ohio was accepted by the country many years ago, but the actual improvement is progressing more slowly than its importance warrants. A number of locks are under construction, but the work is not yet of any value to the river interests. The dam at Merrill, recently completed, will be of little advantage until the four between that and Davis Island are also in operation, and at the rate of advancement they are making they will not be complete for some years. They are part of a general plan to make the stream navigable for light draught steamers all the year around. In the meantime there has been developed a necessity for enlarged improvement that will become pressing with the completion of the Panama canal.

In the present situation the River Improvement association finds itself asking for the completion of work that is already almost out of date and at the same time for a new program. Surveys ought to be made at once for a nine-foot channel from Pittsburgh to Cairo, though the dams now in course of construction contemplate only a permanent stage of six feet. The convention at Huntingdon last week rose to its opportunities and placed its chief emphasis on the nine-foot waterway. The wisdom of that course is apparent at a glance. The government is committed to the six-foot river project and will go ahead with it in its leisurely way in any event. It is not committed to the greater project and at least some of its agents are antagonistic to this betterment of the nation's transportation facilities. It will require hard effort to overcome this opposition and to educate the country at large to the immense advantage of having a thorough water route to the Pacific from every part of the Mississippi watershed.

The claims of the Ohio to government care are beyond dispute. There was a traffic upon this stream before the navigation of the lakes had begun, with larger craft than bark canoes. Despite handicaps the traffic on the Ohio has grown to exceed that of any other river in this country. With the opening of the Panama canal it will become the open way from Pittsburgh to the Pacific ocean. In the past it has been of the utmost benefit to a very large proportion of the populaton of the country. In the future it may benefit many more. The improvement is in no way a local matter, but one of national interest, and congressmen should give it their earnest consideration and hearty co-operation. The River Improvement association will make it its business to see that their attention is called to the subject and that task deserves encouragement.

An Ancient Motor Law.

An old law for the regulation of steam road engines has been dug up with a threat to apply it to automobiles. The act specifies vehicles propelled by steam or "by any power other than horses, mules or oxen." This seems to cover the most modern touring and pleasure cars, as well as the familiar traction engine used to drag a steam thresher about the rural highways. The old act is unnecessarily severe if applied to the modish carriages of the twentieth century, but nothing can be too drastic for the fellows who have no more appreciation of their good fortune than to abuse a good thing. It declares that no such vehicle shall run upon the public roads unless preceded by a herald on foot at a distance of at least 600 yards. It also provides that every such vehicle shall stop upon the approach of a vehicle drawn by horses when the same is at least 300 feet away, and wait until the same has passed.

If enforced, this old statute will prove an effectual bar to "scorching." The speed of the machine being regulated by that of the herald on foot will hardly be dangerous to pedestrians. In a way this advance agent of pleasure might be made to serve the picturesque, if clothed like the courier of old, and he might be made to serve the dignity of the occasion, provided any dignity could survive the classification of a 60-horsepower tonneau with a wheezy thresher motor. It is probable this classification may be as effective of reform as the enforcement of the restrictive provisions of the law.

It may be held, not without reason, that the later act for the regulation of automobiles supersedes this traction engine law. The newer act, however, is sufficient to prevent the great abuses of automobiling if enforced. The digging up of the other statute is, however, significant of the determination of the rural public to limit highway speeds to safe rates or to prohibit motoring altogether. The wise votaries of the sport will easily see where their interest lies.

Convicts as Candidates.

At the last election the Democratic party did not succeed in pulling through many of its candidates, but in Boston it performed the extraordinary exploit of electing a convict to office, and has nominated to office his brother, also a convict. Thomas F. Curley has been re-elected member of the Massachusetts house of representatives and James F. Curley has been renominated for alderman. Both are serving out a jail sentence.

The Curleys are Democratic ward bosses and they are the sort of politicians who do not believe that the constitution should come between friends. Years ago they were convicted of defrauding the government by personating two other men at a civil service examination. They have been fighting the verdict ever since and have carried the case up to the United States supreme court, but were unable to find a loophole of escape. On the day before the election they had to go to jail to serve out the sentence of two months imprisonment which had long been hanging over them.

On the Sunday before election day their followers gave a great jollification in their honor. The Curleys made addresses in which they posed as martyrs. Alderman Curley said:

"Two of our followers, two neighbors, wished to better their condition. In our effort to assist them to obtain the necessaries of life, to gain a position where they and their families might be enabled to live, we took the examination for them.

"That was all; that is what we are going to the stone house for, to face two months of monotony, to be separated from our families, friends and all we hold dear."

Representative Curley said:

"I am not ashamed of what I did. It was due to largeness of heart, a desire to better a fellow man, a spirit that never troubled those who were so anxious for our conviction."

The next day they were brought before the United States court and their counsel made an eloquent appeal for clemency. This is what the judge said:

"The effrontery of these men since sentence was imposed upon them has been inexcusable. If there were any legal way I should certainly be inclined to give them the maximum sentence, but it is not advisable, and the former sentence will go into effect at once. I consider that their supporters share in their shame."

As the convicts were taken off to jail another demonstration in their honor took place outside the court house and the prison van was followed by a string of carriages, filled with cheering friends. Altogether the affair was the one bright spot of Democratic triumph in the dark expanse of national party disaster. But the two convicts cannot assume the duties of their offices until they have served their sentence. Ward Seventeen of Boston regards this affair as a complete demonstration of the despotic tendencies of the Roosevelt administration.

The Republican House.

The clerk of the national house of representatives has been making up the list of members chosen at the recent election to the Fifty-ninth congress and finds that the Republicans will have a majority of 118, the largest in history. The Republicans had 115 in the Forty-third congress and 112 in the Fifty-fourth congress, while the Democrats had a still greater majority in the Fifty-second congress. The effect of this disproportion will be to compel the speaker to reduce the minority representation on committees unless he decides to appoint individual Democrats to several committees.

Some idea of the Republican tidal wave can be had by the fact that Missouri, which has only one Republican and 15 Democrats in the present house, has elected nine Republicans and seven Democrats. In each of the big delegations from Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio there will be only one Democrat. One Republican was elected in North Carolina, which has at present a solid Democratic delegation, while the Republicans gained three members in California, two in Indiana, one each in Kentucky, Delaware, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nebraska and Nevada. New York gave the Republicans a gain of six congressmen.

With this sudden and unexpected increase in power there should come a serious sense of responsibility. As a rule a Republican increase in plurality does not mean a party disorganized by factions, for Republican congresses are capable of producing results, whether the majority is large or small. But as a rule a close majority is easier to handle, for members realize that their party demands every vote in order to dispatch business. The magnitude of Republican party strength in the next congress makes party duty correspondingly exacting, and the party leaders will find plenty of employment in producing legislative results that will be accepted by the people as satisfactory service.

In the inaugural parade next spring the American club will have a place of honor. It will not be first place, for the Pittsburghers have not asked that favor, but it will be up near the front. Meantime the Pennsylvania majority is keeping the position of especial honor in its line.

A million dollar contract for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has been secured by the Westinghouse interests. When there is big work to do Pittsburgh gets its share.

Next year is expected to break all records in steel production. That is a big contract, for it means more than 19,000,000 tons of pig iron in the 12 months.

Czar Nicholas may be liberally inclined, but it has not struck in on him to the extent of enabling him to resist his bureaucratic associates.

England's North sea inquiry has disclosed no shadow of justification for the attack on the trawlers, and it has been a fair inquest.

When the Citizens party leaders went down on their knees to Larkin, there must have been a cracking of stiff joints extraordinary.

Alaska did not vote for it, but it will also get the square deal for every man, no more and no less.

Clarion county continues to regard the result as a sort of dispensation of Providence.

West Virginia is failing to work in earnest to make the most of the prosperity it voted for.

A majority of 11 votes with the aid of the payroll is not a victory to be proud of.

If the Standard Oil is frightened it knows where the wrong is.

Gen. Huertas will not even get a position on the police force.

Meanest Kind of Graft.

There is no more contemptible form of graft practiced anywhere than that which compels poorly compensated school teachers to pay a part of their small earnings to some influence to secure their appointment. And yet it is common—much more common than is generally understood by the public. There are many districts where it is necessary to have a secure pull or to pay money to get a position as teacher, no matter how meritorious the applicant. If the school teachers of Luzerne are true to their resolve they will do much to abate the crime of depriving them of a part of their meager pay. It will require some courage, but if they stand together they need have no fear. And they will show the way to others.—Philadelphia Press.

Wanted to Encourage Him.

If the voting public had simply wished to indicate that they were not disapproving of President Roosevelt's policy and methods during three years of administration, it could have done so without tearing everything up by the roots by way of manifestating its satisfaction. But it regarded the president as the man who had given the country the largest promise as well as the most effective performance, and it wanted to encourage him past the point where respect to the wisdom of carrying out his impthere could be any misgivings in his mind with plied pledges.—Washington Post.

Economy the Road to Wealth.

Farmers, put away summer tools. If you knew of a ten dollar bill lying out in the field you'd hurry out there and get it. Yet you leave a $10 plow out there all winter.—Warren Mail.

Talked of in Gotham

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—This is the open season for automobilists in the villages around New York. Yesterday the constables at Rye, N. Y., bagged a score of them, and as the fines were from $10 to $15 each, it is easy to see what a good thing the automobile is for the village treasury. Saturday proved an exceptionally good day for the sport of constables because hundreds of parties from New York took the automobile route to the big football game at New Haven. The village fathers at Rye quickly saw the beauty of the game, and promptly swore in a score of extra constables to help spread the net for the unwary. An eighth of a mile course was laid out along the main village street and men were stationed there with stop watches to take the time. Of course the most inviting stretch of road for speeding was chosen, and the game worked beautifully. If the victims were gentle and admitted their fault it cost them a fine of $10, but if they took occasion to denounce the officials, that cost an extra $5. In the first two hours of the sport at Rye the fines aggregated $150. In the evening, when the automobiles were returning, in a hurry to reach the city to attend the theater, perhaps, another good haul was made. Some of the victims were caught going and coming, which in this case is not slang. But they paid their fines and rushed into the city, where they found other officials waiting for them. Bennett Porter, chauffeur for Miss Ruth Huggins of New York, was caught in the net a third time, and by this time there was not enough ready money in the party to bail him out. Miss Huggins came to the rescue by offering her jewels to the sergeant, but he declined. However, he allowed her to sign a bail bond for Porter after she had admitted that she owned real estate worth "many times more than $1,000." But Rye and New York city were not the only villages to profit by the automobile yesterday. It was too good a thing to lose and nearly every town through which the football parties passed managed to enrich its treasury to some extent.

Terrier With a Grievance.

Whether it is because he was once overcharged by a cabby or was kicked by a cab horse does not appear, but a Boston bull terrier owned by Mrs. Sallie Davis has a grudge against anything hitched to a hansom. Mrs. Davis was giving Sport an airing last night, and when passing along Broadway he decided to take a bite of his favorite brand of meat. After a struggle he got away from his mistress and attacked the nearest horse. The horse ran away, with Sport hanging onto his heels, and when the driver succeeded in stopping the maddened horse a couple of blocks away, Sport leaped upon its back and was only beaten off by the efforts of a policeman, the cabby and a multitude of Broadwayites. Then the policeman gathered in Sport and his owner and they spent the night together in the Tenderloin station. Sport now has the alternative of going to some part of the country where cabs are not, or going to the happy hunting grounds.

Jangle Among the Patriots.

The fate of Jumel mansion is still in the balance. Because the father of his country was once upon a time a guest in the old mansion, both the Daughters of the Revolution and the Colonial Dames desire to own it, and it is now up to Park Commissioner Palias to decide the case. At the hearing before him, the Daughters accused the Dames of being the descendants of Tories, and Senator Grady, for the Dames, insisted some of the members of the organization of which he was champion were "direct descendants of the immortal Washington." Nor would he recede when he was told that Washington left no descendants, bracing himself with the statement that he had it "from the word of a lady." Commissioner Palias tried to compromise the affair by taking possession of the mansion in the name of the city, but both sides objected to this, so he reserved his final decision. Meanwhile each side to the controversy claims to be the only and original patriotic society, and all others are shams.

Death Ends Sister's Devotion.

The death of Miss Henela Moles under the wheels of the "Howard Gould express" the other evening has revealed a pathetic case of the devotion of a woman for a brother who once saved her from the flames of their burning dwelling when they were children. Several years ago the sister came to America from Poland, and later she sent money enough to bring her brother to her. But the Russian government seldom forgets even the smallest of its subjects. The brother was arrested within a year after his arrival, and a charge was made that he was a victim of a contagious disease of the eyes. His eyes were diseased slightly, but only as a result of injuries he sustained while rescuing his sister from the fire. Nevertheless he was deported and promptly drafted into the Russian army. Since then his sister has worked hard and saved every possible penny in the hope of being able to buy his release from the army. When killed she had $645 sewed up in various parts of her clothing.

Another Taste of Ibsen.

That there are still people in the world who enjoy the gruesome thoughts emanating from the mind of Henrik Ibsen is shown by the crowded houses that are seen at the Manhattan theater. Of course Mrs. Fiske has a "following" and this following is always with her, but certainly some of the people who help to fill the Manhattan must go to have their feelings stirred as only Ibsen can do the trick. "Hedda Gabler," the Ibsenesque drama now being given by Mrs. Fiske, is described by a friend about like this: "There are seven characters in the piece, two incidentals, a chief she villain, an assistant male villain and three blooming idiots who can't see through plate glass. And the number of things the she villain does to the rest of the bunch in the course of two hours is enough to drive a white man to drink. The worst feature of the piece is that she waits until the last act to blow her brains out. I would have enjoyed that bit of realism an hour or so earlier." Nevertheless, as a piece of fine dramatic art, as interpreted by the Fiske players, "Hedda Gabler" is worth seeing. It is hardly food for children or matinee girls, however.

Pittsburgh Hunter Got Rare Bird.

A Pittsburgh hunter shot an English pheasant in the woods near Rockton last week. The bird was a very pretty one and its presence in the woods of that section cannot be explained.—Clearfield Raftsman's Journal.

The Quiet Observer.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

Do you know what you want?

If you do, and don't see it, ask for it, and if you ought to have it you will get it, sure thing!

The trouble with most of us is that we think we want certain things, and not getting them we get ugly, cut fool didos and maybe take a header into the ditch.

There is no sense, at least no sort of good sense, in such conduct.

If you set your heart on something that is right and proper for you, the chances are all in favor of your getting it. You may not get it right off, but it will come your way in good time.

Earnest, honest desire brings things our way, or at least they lead us to where they are and they will do this as surely as the pole-star leads to the pole.

That thing upon which the heart is set is bound to come to pass, for that which we may be must first be in our hearts.

Have you ever known of anyone accomplishing anything worth while who hadn't it in his heart to do it?

We hear a lot of talk about insurmountable difficulties, but they are only possible to those who lack pluck, perseverance and purpose.

* * * * *

What is it that you want?

The first thing for you to do is to make up your mind as to what you want, and make it up good and strong. It is not enough to figure out what you would like to have. The desire must be deeply rooted in the heart. This desire will ever be nagging you, and in order to gratify it you will keep edging toward it consciously and unconsciously.

Honest desire is the most persistent, untiring force in the soul of man.

You see how very important it is to encourage, and to help develop proper desires in the hearts of young people so that when they grow up these will nag them and urge them on to the accomplishment of proper things.

If your desires are honest and worthy you will not be greatly discouraged by an occasional reverse. Indeed, you may expect adversity to butt into you now and again, just as it has into everyone who has ever amounted to anything.

"Prosperity," says Bacon, "is not without many fears and distastes, and adversity is not without comfort and hope."

And that is very true, for when a man is face to face with adversity, if he have courage, will be at his best, but while hand in hand with prosperity he is ever fearful that some untoward thing may happen whereby he will lose his grip on fortune.

Senaca, the grand old philosopher, held that the gods are well pleased when they see great men contending with adversity.

* * * * *

"Faint heart ne'er won fair lady" is but another way of saying that in order to win that which is fair and good the desire for it must be deeply seated in the heart, and that it must be diligently, persistently wooed.

Things that come of their own accord, or that are fetched without much effort, are not nearly as enjoyable as those that taxed your skill or your strength, or both, to fetch.

Easy things are not dependable. They lack the equalities of strength and stanchness which are absolutely essential to durability, and to real worth.

Can you recall the name of any man who achieved greatness that did not have to contend long and even fiercely?

There are beasts to be contended with besides those at Ephesus, and just as strong and as savage, but if you have the heart, the purpose and the desires of Paul you will not cower before them.

Therefore, make up your mind as to what you want, cultivate strong desires for right things, and keep right on feeding these desires so that they may become strong enough to carry you forward to the desired goal.

What has not true love led men and women to do? It has made them to laugh at locksmiths, to defy law and precedent and to brave death in its cruelest forms.

Cultivate wholesome desires and your heart shall be gratified in good time.

Judging from their symptoms there are a whole lot of people who do not really want anything in particular, but seem to think they want something—something real easy. Naturally enough these do not get anything but that which is easy, too easy to be worth much.

Even men who stumble into fortunes, or who inherit them, rarely find them to be of real worth. And instead of their fortunes becoming their servants in the accomplishment of good they themselves become easy victims to their easily acquired wealth.

The secret of the failure of such men is that they don't have to do things in order that they may live.

"By the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat bread," is the edict of God that came to Adam in the garden of the world, and it has never been rescinded, nor even modified, and it never will be as far as this world is concerned.

Has any man ever thrived and grown into true greatness, or even into true worth, who has not eaten of the bread that was the fruit of his own labor?

So, don't waste your time in looking for soft snaps, and in sighing for something easy to do, nor in whining because fortune does not stoop to open your pockets and fill them with gold.

* * * * *

SYMPTOMS.

I guess what I want is a neat little shack,
A nice little garden spot where I can dig,
A porch in the front an' a barn in the back,
Some chickens, a cow an' a horse an' a pig,
A neat little picket fence all around the lot,
A walk to the house, either gravel or stone.
I think such a place would suit me to a dot—
I guess what I want is a home of my own.

Inside, what I need's not a great deal o' space—
A neat, cozy settin' room, furnished up right
With bright Brussels carpet an' curtains o' lace
An' plenty o' winders to make the place light.
I'd like fer an organ some money to spend,
Some vases an' knick-knacks to give the thing tone;
A kitchen, two bedrooms—one spare, for a friend.
I guess what I want is a home of my own.

I guess there's some fixin's that wimmen folks need;
I ain't certain what all them fixin's may be,
Till now I ain't noticed ner taken no heed,
But what she might fancy would surely suit me.
I can't say as some one ter suit me I've found,
But I'm mighty sick o' this livin' alone.
It's time I was quittin' this boardin' around—
I guess what I want is a home of my own.

The Liberty Bell.

The Liberty bell is a precious relic, belonging, in sentiment, at least, to the whole nation. All Americans are interested in its safety, and must regard with misgivings the practice of carting it about the country, and thus subjecting it to danger of destruction in some railroad accident. They are interested, too, in preserving the fitness of things, and thus in saving an honored object from being cheapened and degraded. The bell is cheapened and degraded when it is removed from its proper setting, and its only proper setting is in Independence hall. There it typifies the proclamation of liberty to all the land. Anywhere else it is little more than so many pounds of junk.—New York Tribune.

Art Exhibitions

The eighteenth annual exhibition by the National Academy of Design will open December 21, at the galleries of the American Fine Arts society in New York city, and close January 28. The jury of selection consists this year of Messrs. D. W. Tryon, Frederick P. Vinton, Douglas Volk, Horatio Walker, Edgar M. Ward, J. Q. A. Ward, J. Alden Weir, Frederick W. Freer and Edward Gay. The hanging committee will consist of Messrs. W. H. Lippincott, Leonard Ochtman and C. T. Chapman. The prizes offered are: The Thomas B. Clarke prize of $200 for the best American figure composition painted in the United States by an American citizen, without limitation of age; the Julius Hallgarten prizes of $300, $200 and $100 for the three best pictures in oil colors painted in the United States by American citizens under 35 years of age; the Thomas R. Proctor prize of $200 for the best portrait in the exhibition, and the Inness gold medal for the best landscape.

The seventeenth annual exhibition of the Chicago Art Institute opened there on October 21. It is a large display, including 487 pictures and sculptures. The exhibition brings forward the work of a number of young western artists, while some of the stronger eastern painters and sculptors are represented. William M. Chase, Robert Reid, Robert Henri, Rehn, the two Harrisons, Ochtman, Frederick MacMonnies, MacEwen and Robert W. Vonnah are best represented of eastern artists. Among the western work shown of special interest is that of Frank W. Wadsworth in landscape, Mrs. Gilfamen and Mrs. Colburn, Frederick W. Freer, William Wendt and William Henderson.

The most interesting art event in New York just now was the opening last week, at the American Fine Arts building in Fifty-seventh street, of the "Comparative Exhibition of Native and Foreign Art," an enterprise organized under the auspices of the newly founded Society of Art Collectors. The scheme, for the practical working out of which credit must be awarded to Messrs. William T. Evans and Frederick Bonner, consists in placing 100 of the best foreign pictures to be found in this city upon exhibition in the same rooms with an equal number of pictures by American artists, the hanging to be done in a manner to contrast, so far as possible, the art achievements of the Old and the New World. Alongside of each foreign picture is hung some American work so selected as to make comparisons, if sometimes "odious," at least always interesting and instructive. Portraits and mural paintings have been excluded. All the receipts, after payment of expenses, will be given to the New York Eye and Ear infirmary.

\+ \+ \+ \+

Philadelphia has begun its art season with the third annual exhibition of the Pennsylvania Society of Miniature Painters, which opened at the McClees gallery, in Chestnut street, recently. The display is larger than at the previous shows, and numbers 100 examples. These have a good, if not a high, average of merit. Mrs. Emily Drayton Taylor, Miss Archambault, Miss Eulabee Dix, Miss Ella Ahrens, Miss Amy Otis and Miss Anna Hill Smith are perhaps best represented in the display. The work of Mrs. Taylor, Miss Ahrens and Miss Archambault in particular is excellent, says the New York Herald, and there is an evident desire on the part of these painters and of others represented, to avoid mere prettiness and to strive for strength and quality. Too many painters, and especially women painters, have rushed into miniature work in the last few years, in consequence of a revived demand for "painting in the little," and the result has been a saddening output of weak and poor miniatures. It is gratifying to note an improvement in this respect in the exhibitions of the New York and Pennsylvania societies of miniature painters the last two years, but both organizations are still too lenient and admit inferior work too often.

\+ \+ \+ \+

The range and value of the work done under the auspices of the fine arts department of the Boston Public Library may be inferred from the list of the season's exhibitions just printed. The first of these consisted of photographs of American works of art, most of them contributed by the artists, among whom may be mentioned John S. Sargent, Henry O. Walker, Abbott Thayer, George DeForrest Brush, Frank W. Benson, Louise Cox and Robert Reid. This exhibition will be followed by a collection of pictures of ancient Rome. Other exhibitions to follow are as follows: November 28, Italian Manuscripts; December 5, Early Renaissance of Italy; December 12, Specimens of Early Printing; January 2, Brick Architecture of Northern Italy; January 9, Spanish Renaissance Architecture; January 16, the Illustration of Books; January 30, Monastic Architecture of the Middle Ages; February 6, Greek Art; February 13, Roman and Renaissance Villas; February 20, the Walters Collection of Oriental Art; February 27, Gothic Architecture of France; March 6, Egyptian Art; March 13, Early Church Architecture of England; March 20, Assyrian and Chaldean Art; March 27, Elizabethan Architecture of England; April 3, German Art; April 10, English Country Houses; April 24, Village Architecture. The dates are so arranged as to make almost all of these exhibitions serve as illustrations of the courses of free public lectures to be given in the lecture hall of the library during the season.

The Washington Water Color club's ninth annual exhibition opened recently with a private view and reception in the hemicycle of the Corcoran Gallery of Art, and from Monday, November 14, to Saturday, December 10, it will be free to the public every weekday and on Sunday afternoons. This exhibition is made up of both local and out-of-town work, says the Washington Star, and will be found to compare more than favorably with the larger shows held in Philadelphia, New York and Boston. It is serious, thoughtful and at the same time artistic. To both painter and layman it will be interesting and intelligible. In subject and technique the work it displays is exceedingly varied; the pictures, mostly painted last summer, come from many localities, and no one school of expression prevails. The standard set by the club in past seasons has been well upheld, and with more than one exhibitor there is marked evidence of progress. There are more pictures this year than formerly and no less paintings—works, which, while well executed, set forth something more than clever, technical performance. Three prized have been awarded, two given by the trustees of the Corcoran gallary, for the best pictures in the exhibition, and one offered by A. J. Parsons for the best water color by a local painter. They are as follows: To Miss Bertha E. Perrie, the first Corcoran prize of $100 for "An Italian Salt Ship"; to Miss Elizabeth Shippen Green, the second Corcoran prize of $50 for a calendar design, and to H. Hobart Nichols, the Parsons prize of $50 for "Twilight in Maine." Honorable mention to Lucien Powell for "The Grand Canyon" and to W. A. Sharp for a drawing, "Motherhood."

The first American photographic salon will be opened under the auspices of the Metropolitan Camera club in the Clausen galleries, New York, December 5. It will be moved to the Corcoran gallery in Washington, December 17, and then to other cities for exhibition. Already the committee have received over 7,500 American photographs and 1,000 from abroad from which they must select 400. Of foreign countries Germany will be most prominently represented, while pictures have been received from India, South Africa and Australia. John LaFarge is chairman of the committee and is assisted by such eminent artists as Will H. Low, Kenyon Cox, Irving R. Wiles and Walter Appleton Clark.

The Chronic Braggart.

The "Dispatch" in its comments on the reform victory in the Twenty-second ward, characteristically lays claim to a large share of credit for the result. Inasmuch as it was only on Wednesday last that our estimable neighbor came down from the fence and climbed on the Bockstoce bandwagon such pretensions are a trifle amusing. But such is invariably the "Dispatch's" way. Watch how the cat jumps. Jump the same way at the "psychological moment" and then reach out for the honors. This performance, however, has come to be so well known that it has ceased to surprise or annoy anybody. The wise men in politics never bank upon the "Dispatch" one way or another.—Pittsburgh Leader.

MURDER MYSTERY OF RIVER ROAD

John Cochran Dying After a Brief Struggle With an Unknown Man.

ITALIANS ADMIT A KILLING

John Cochran, aged 22, of Sheraden, was stabbed in the abdomen early yesterday morning by an unknown man along the river road, about 200 yards from the West End city line. The assailant escaped, but James Curran of Sheraden, a witness, was taken to the West End police station. Cochran is at the South Side hospital, and the physicians say he will not recover.

Cochran and Curran had been drinking together in the West End, Saturday night. The men started to walk to their homes and met a man who Cochran knew. The men got into a discussion about organized labor, Curran was walking in the rear of Cochran and the stranger, when they clinched. Curran saw Cochran fall on the pavement, crying he was cut.

Curran and the stranger watched Cochran until a McKees Rocks car came along. The men boarded the car and left Cochran lying in the street. Curran says it was his intention to turn the stranger over to the police when the car reached Esplen, but the latter got off before it arrived there, and Curran returned to help Cochran.

Cochran then had been found by William Manning, a riverman, and Curran and the wounded man were taken away in the patrol wagon. While on the way to the hospital Cochran told the police that Curran had stabbed him, but it is not believed he was rational when he made this statement. Curran is 22 years old and was employed in the Sheraden mills with Cochran.

The police have been unable to get any trace of the man who did the cutting. Curran described him as being five feet, eight inches in height, weighing about 170 pounds, light hair and mustache, and wearing a light overcoat, dark clothes and a black stiff hat.

Joseph Comese, Lenie Dolleo, Tone Julia and Snick Dido, Italians, were arrested early yesterday morning in connection with the death of Guiseppo Tolo, the Italian, who was stabbed Saturday night in Flowers avenue. Comese told Inspector Bailey that he stabbed Tolo while Dolleo held him.

The men had been fighting and Tolo threatened to kill them, he said. Tolo reached for his knife and the men stabbed him for self-protection.

Julia and Dido are being held as witnesses in the case. The Italians lived in Hazelwood avenue and worked in the mills. They are about 18 years old and had been drinking together before the quarrel started. A knife, with a blade five inches long, was found on Tolo's clothing at the morgue.

BURGLAR FOUND OWNER WAITING FOR HIM

Captured by Policemen After Exciting Chase in East End. He Resisted Arrest.

A man who attempted to enter the residence of C. A. McFeely, Aiken and Claysburn avenues, East End, late Saturday night found the owner of the house waiting for him, and after a sharp struggle, followed by an exciting chase, the alleged burglar was captured by a policeman a couple of blocks from the house.

McFeeley's housekeeper noticed a man walking past the house several times, and his conduct aroused her suspicions. She notified McFeeley, who laid in wait. Soon afterward McFeeley's daughter saw the man vault the fence into the yard. He walked up to the front door, and as he attempted to turn the knob, McFeeley jumped out and grabbed him.

The man succeeded in breaking loose and McFeeley called for help. He was heard by Policemen Andrew Mellott and James Burns, about a block distant. Both officers gave chase, Mellott overtaking the man at Ellsworth and Aiken avenues. He resisted until Officer Burns arrived. He gave his name as J. J. Gilland and said his home is at Natrona. He is 35 years of age.

Will Honor Memory of Martyrs.

Final arrangements have been made by the O'Growney Gaelic society for the entertainment Wednesday evening in Lyceum hall to honor the memory of Allen, Larkin and O'Brien, the "Dauntless Three," who on the scaffold at Manchester with their last breath gave voice to the prayer: "God Save Ireland." The program will consist of six songs and three addresses, followed by a dance at which distinctly Irish dances will be a feature. HOW MR. MORGAN GAVE BACK COPE

Vitali Benguiat, Dealer Who Sold It to Him, Tells How Both Were Deceived.

ROMANCE OF PRIEST'S ROBE

Vitali Benguiat, the dealer in antique textiles, who sold to J. Pierpont Morgan the famous Ascoli cope, is in Pittsburgh to superintend an exhibit of articles of old textile art which he possesses. Mr. Benguiat told an interesting story of how he first heard of the cope, how he bought it from a dealer and how he sold it to Morgan. Finally the whole world learned that it was a famous specimen of needlework, 700 years old, stolen from the church at Ascoli, Italy. Morgan ordered that it be returned to the priests at Ascoli, losing the money which he paid for it, although Benguiat agreed to call the bargain off and take back the cope.

"Mr. Morgan's action in returning the cope is a princely deed," said Mr. Benguiat, "especially as there is no law which would have forced him to give it up, the cope having been bought by me in the marche ouvert, the open market. I had taken legal advice on the subject and was assured by an English and an American lawyer that the circumstances under which I bought the cope made it my property absolutely under the law of England.

"As I have said, Mr. Morgan's deed is princely, but I warned him when he told me he would return the cope that if he intended to be governed by such principles in the future he would soon be giving many things back to the original owners."

Buy Stolen Goods Unknowingly.

"Why," Mr. Benguiat was asked, "has Mr. Morgan bought stolen objects of art?"

"Of course he has, unknowingly," said Mr. Benguiat, "and so have many other collectors like Mr. Morgan. Dealers in antiquities do not ask questions when they buy such things. Why should they? A man offers them an object for sale, they see that it is valuable and they buy it, expecting to sell it again.

"The cope purchased by Mr. Morgan from me was exhibited at the South Kensington museum in London last June and was seen by the Italian ambassador, who knew of the theft two years before from the church at Ascoli. Proof was soon brought that the cope owned by Mr. Morgan was the identical one that had been stolen. I came to America and saw Mr. Morgan. I told him he had bought a priceless article. 'Yes,' he said, 'but I am going to give it back.' I told him that he was not required to do so, and that it was honestly his, and I offered to take it back. 'No,' he said, 'I have bought it from you and I believe that you did not know it was stolen when you sold it to me; I can't keep it under the circumstances, but the loss shall be mine.'"

"Would you have returned it to Ascoli and lost what you paid for it?" Mr. Benguiat was asked.

The dealer laughed.

"I would have told the Italian government," he answered, "that if they would pay me the price Mr. Morgan had agreed to pay me they could have the cope. You see, I had the receipt given me by the dealer from whom I bought it. The fact is, that while the Italian papers printed the story of the theft of the cope, nothing was known of the matter outside of Italy. I had not heard of it, and, no doubt, many other dealers were equally ignorant."

Mr. Benguiat said investigation had shown that the cope was stolen from its frame in the church at Ascoli by the barber who shaved the priests. He smuggled it to Paris in a bag, where he finally sold it. That dealer sold it to another. Finally it got to Brussels and then to London. On a trip to Paris Mr. Benguiat's brother told him of the cope, and the dealer traced it to Brussels, then to London, where he purchased it, ultimately selling it to Mr. Morgan, who ordered him to deliver it to the South Kensington museum, which was unable to buy it, but wished to exhibit it for a while and take water-color copies of it for distribution among other museums in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

The cope has a romantic story. Nearly 700 years ago it was made in England, then famous for its gold needlework. Some great English nobleman presented it to the church at Ascoli and there it stayed for many centuries until, by devious ways, it again arrived in England. A photographer, accused of complicity in the theft, recently committed suicide in prison, and a priest has been charged with being concerned in the larceny.

A cope is a long mantle, usually embroidered in gold thread, worn by bishops and priests while engaged in solemn ceremonies of the Catholic church. The designs worked in this particular one represent the scenes of the persecutions suffered under the Roman emperors by the first 18 popes.

HOW PRINCE FUSHIMI SURPRISED A CONDUCTOR

Japanese Nobleman Presented Pennsylvania Trainman With a Carved Cigarette Case.

Conductor Frank Nilan, who runs on the Pennsylvania limited between Pittsburgh and Altoona, received a magnificent token from Prince Fuchima when the distinguished Japanese nobleman went to Washington last week. While the limited was tolling up the heavy grade of the mountains, a member of the prince's suite summoned the conductor to Fuchima's car.

Thinking the prince desired to give some order about the supplies for his chef, Nilan hurried to the royal stateroom, bowed with as much oriental ceremony as he could affect, and asked the pleasure of his royal highness. The prince stood up and made a little speech in which he complimented the conductor for his good work and presented him with a solid silver cigarette case.

The gift is a specimen of Japanese handicraft of rare value, and is carved by hand with rich embossing and enamel.

POPE WOULD RIDE BICYCLE IF HE WERE YOUNG AGAIN

Warns Priests Who Come to See Him Against Damaging Interests of Railways.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

ROME, Nov. 20.—Bishop Chatard of the diocese of Indianapolis was received in private audience today by Pope Pius X. The pope also received a committee from Lucca. Learning that two of the members of the committee came to Rome on bicycles, he congratulated them, adding:

"I forbade priests to ride the bicycle, but were I young again I would gladly use the bicycle, as when I was a boy of 4 years I walked daily 12 miles in all kinds of weather, sun or rain, to go to school. If I had had a bicycle I would have saved time and strength."

His holiness added, jokingly: "Don't bicycle too much; you might damage the interest of the railways."

COUNTRY FOLKS SPENT LONG NIGHT IN WAITING

They Came from Up State to See the Sights and Missed Homeward-Bound Train.

A score of people from towns along the low grade division of the Allegheny Valley railway were obliged to spend last night in Pittsburgh while they wished very much to be at home up in the country. More than 1,000 of them came in on two special excursion trains yesterday morning and devoted the day to the Carnegie institute attractions and the animals at the Highland park zoo. The last section of their train started back for Elk and Clarion counties at 7 o'clock and many were left behind. Their tickets were not accepted on regular trains and the belated excursionists had nothing to do but to make the best of a bad proposition.

There were a few who had never been in a big city after dark and they were overwhelmed by the strange sights. A few sent telegrams home and scattered to local hotels. Others didn't like to risk hotels, so they just waited in the station until daylight. They will return on early trains this morning, or wait until their friends come down this afternoon to act as personal conductors on their tour back home.

Dedicating New Church.

MORGANTOWN, W. VA., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—Services preliminary to the dedication of the new Methodist Episcopal church here began today and will continue until next Sunday. Iliff of Philadelphia exhorted the congregation to contribute toward the payment of the $30,000 due on the church, and about half that sum was raised. Bishop Fowler will preach the dedicatory sermon next Sunday.

REPUBLICANS MUST DECIDE

They Now Have Center of the Stage in the Contest for the Controllership.

FULTON TO TAKE A VACATION

Political interest centers in the controllership election. There is much speculation as to what the Republicans will do. It is now practically settled that the Citizens, Democrats and Orphans will support John B. Larkin for re-election. The Republicans still have to determine whether they will allow Larkin to secure the office without a contest or make a fight against him.

There is considerable difference of opinion among the Republican workers as to the course to pursue. Many of them can be found who think that it would be wise to give Larkin the office and there are many others who insist that a fight should be made. The Republican primaries will be held early in January and the question has to be met very soon.

Some of the opponents of Larkin say that if he has an easy time in February he will a year hence be a candidate for mayor. The controller has always taken the ground that a man should serve the term in the office to which he has been elected. He is looking forward to the mayoralty fight, but it is generally believed that he does not want the office himself. His candidate is William H. Stevenson, the head of the Orphans party.

While Stevenson is keeping an eye on the mayoralty, he is not without company. Samuel J. Wainwright, Jr., select councilman from the Eighteenth ward, is hopeful that he can succeed Mayor Hays. From present indications he expects the assistance of the administration. Recently there have been signs that a gilded brick is being wrapped for him. Close administration men are putting out feelers in the interest of City Treasurer John F. Steel.

Some time ago there was a story going the rounds that Wainwright and "Andy" Fulton had entered into an agreement. According to the report they were to seek the Republican mayoralty nomination and the man who made the better showing in delegates was to receive the support of the other candidate. Just now Fulton is not talking of the mayoralty campaign. He complains that the hard labors of his office have forced him to seek rest. Wednesday he will sail for London on the Majestic, to be gone a month. The successor of Mayor Hays will not be chosen for over a year.

M. G. Leslie, chairman of the Republican city committee, who has been in the east since the election, returned home yesterday.

BLACK HAND REACHED OUT.

Rachel Campbell Was Prevented from Jumping from Attic Window.

The two-story-and-attic frame house, 217 Renfrew street, was badly damaged by fire yesterday, and Rachel Campbell, colored, the occupant, grew excited and nearly jumped from the window of the attic.

The alarm brought the firemen to the house at 9:35 a. m. The entire second story and attic seemed to be afire. Just as the firemen got there Rachel Campbell, with a baby in her arms, was seen climbing out of the window, ready to jump. Chief William Coates and Police Inspector W. J. Boyle got ready to catch her, but a black hand was seen to grab her and pull her back. Then the woman and child and the man who had prevented her from jumping, walked downstairs. The entire upper part of the house was badly burned, the damage being $1,500.

Two Aged Sisters Very Ill.

LATROBE, Nov. 20.—(Special.)—Mother Baptiste and Sister Evangelus, two old and well-known members of the Order of Sisters of Mercy, are lying seriously ill at St. Xavier's convent, near Latrobe. Mother Baptiste for many years was mother superior at St. Mary's convent in Pittsburgh; Sister Evangelus is the aunt of the Rev. Father Graham of Pittsburgh. Both sisters celebrated their golden jubilee two years ago at St. Xavier's.

Church Cornerstone Laid.

BUTLER, Nov. 20.—(Special.)—The corner stone for a Roman Catholic church in Lyndora was laid today. The Rev. Father Rommelfanger presided at the service. An address in English was delivered by the Rev. Father F. K. Collins, and addresses in Polish were made by the Rev. Father Bekovich, pastor of the new church, and the Rev. Father John Andrews. The new church will cost $6,000. The land was donated by the McShane heirs and the Lyndora Supply Company.

TRYING TO FORCE ANOTHER DEAL

Hall Company Wants to Get Its Traction Franchises Through Councils.

AID HOLD-UP OF METER BILLS

Prominent members of select council state that the Hall traction syndicate has not given up hope of its trolley ordinances being passed by councils, and claim the Hall company is largely responsible for the hold-up of Director Bigelow's meter ordinances. One of the officers of the Hall company is accused by Director Bigelow and other city officials with breaking a quorum at the last meeting of the upper branch and councilmen who aided in breaking the quorum claim the meter ordinance will not be passed unless another deal is made regarding the Hall traction ordinances.

"Director James W. Clark, who is treasurer of the Hall traction syndicate, told me the trolley bills will not be allowed to die in the corporations committee. He said they would be taken out and passed," said a well-known select councilman yesterday.

The secretary of the Hall company has been very active among the members of select council and Director Bigelow says he took members away from the meeting last Monday. It was generally understood, when the deal was made to secure the passage of the Duquesne light ordinance and also the ordinances of the Pittsburgh Railways Company for downtown loops, that the Hall syndicate agreed to give up its traction rights, but this is now denied by the Hall officials.

Te Hall promoters, who claimed before the last deal was made that they controlled a majority of both branches of councils, are said to be going ahead and working among the members of select council to hold up all important measures of the administration until another deal can be forced, whereby the traction ordinances lying in the corporations committee can be passed. The Hall lobbyists are said to have taken advantage of Director Bigelow's meter bills to use them as a club to force an agreement in regard to the traction bills.

The master plumbers' organization have objected to the passage of the meter bills in their present shape, on the ground that the installation of meters should be done by contract, as provided in the Wallace act, instead of being done by the city. Their objections are being used, it is claimed, to benefit the Hall traction syndicate, although there are members of select council who have no sympathy with the Hall company and who are sincerely opposed to the meter ordinances as they stand.

One of these is Dr. H. B. Burns, member from the Eleventh ward. "I believe," said he, "that the purchase of meters and their installation, according to the plans of the administration, will cost upwards of $2,000,000 and that another bond issue of $2,000,000 will be required to build a filtration plant and put in meters for the entire city."

BOY SHOT HIS SISTER.

Walter Cartus, aged 17, accidentally shot his sister, Clara, aged 13 years, at 131 Climax street, South Side, at 1:30 p. m. yesterday.

The boy was in the kitchen preparing to clean his flobert rifle. With the hammer raised, he was in the act of "breaking" the stock when a shell exploded. The bullet entered the sister's right cheek. It struck the bone, passed around under the skin, through the right ear, destroying the eardrum and lodged immediately behind the ear. The ball was extracted and the girl will recover unless blood poisoning sets in, which is not probable.

LADY CURZON IS TAKEN TO A MILDER CLIMATE

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Lady Curzon was taken by a special train today from Walmer to Bournemouth, where she will spend the winter at Highcliffe castle, Christchurch, a mile outside the town. The milder climate of Bournemouth is expected to assist her convalescence. She bore the journey well.

U. P. Church Re-Dedicated.

KITTANNING, Nov. 20.—(Special.)—The United Presbyterian church of this city was re-dedicated today. The Rev. Dr. John A. Wilson of the Allegheny seminary preached the morning sermon and this afternoon a fraternal service was held, at which local ministers took part. The sermon this evening was delivered by the Rev. J. W. Reed of Pittsburgh. The pastor is the Rev. F. S. McBride. The United Presbyterian church was remodeled during the last three months and the whole interior entirely changed.

LARKIN TO PRESS BOND CASE TODAY

Will Ask Court for Rule to Compel Mayor Hays to Make Plea.

SHOCK FOR THE INDORSERS

After receiving an indorsement from the Citizens administration for re-election, Controller Larkin proposes to start after the administration immediately on the filtration bond issue and to force the case in court to a speedy issue. It was announced last night that George W. Guthrie, attorney for Controller Larkin, would go into court today and ask for a rule to compel Mayor Hays, the plaintiff in the mandamus case against the controller, to present his plea at once or else that the case be dismissed.

About six weeeks have elapsed since Controller Larkin made his answer to the petition of Mayor Hays for a writ of mandamus to compel Controller Larkin to advertise and sell $5,000,000 of bonds for filtration. In his answer the controller charged that the ordinance authorizing the bond issue had been passed by corruption, and he also raised several important law points. In his legal contentions he claimed the bond issue was illegal, chiefly because the bonds were made payable every five years instead of annually, citing the new charter act as his authority.

Delayed for Six Weeks.

Since then a Scranton judge, in a similar bond case, decided that municipal bonds for public improvements should be made payable annually and the controller has been confident that he could win on this one point if on no other.

The administration is evidently unwilling to try the case, and it has dragged along week by week with no appearance of going any further. This has given rise to rumors of delay of the case until after the controllership election in February and also of an arrangement having been entered into between Controller Larkin and the administration.

The indorsement of Larkin by the Citizens administration for re-election revived these rumors, and the controller declared that it was his intention to bring the case to a conclusion at once in order to prove these rumors false. He denies that he has made any arrangement with the administration respecting the bond issue, and says that he will oppose any bond issue unless the administration agrees to issue the bonds only as they are needed to carry on the work, and not issue the entire amount in one lump.

Surprise to Administration.

The move which the controller's attorney will take today will be a great surprise to the administration, as Mayor Hays and the members of his cabinet have been declaring since Saturday that they were reunited with the controller and that concord prevailed once again in the whole municipal family.

Director Bigelow said yesterday that he would not wait until the bond case is decided to let the contracts for the construction of the filtration plant.

"If I can get the ordinance ready it will be put in councils tomorrow," he said, but some councilmen believe Director Bigelow will fail to put in the ordinance for some time to come." Bigelow said he was certain of having a quorum of select council today.

GIBBONS ADDRESSES LETTER TO CLERGY

Cardinal Makes Statement With Reference to Finances of Catholic University.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Today Cardinal Gibbons made public a letter which he addressed to the Catholic clergy, in which he conveyed the thanks of the trustees of the Catholic University of America for the collection for the university taken in 1903, and asking that the general solicitude be kept up. Cardinal Gibbons also states that the contributions from 76 dioceses amounted to $105,051. He also says that with the collection and donations from various sources, the receipts of the university for last year, apart from its regular income, amounted to $150,809.

The letter concludes:

The amount donated by the Knights of Columbus, and not included in the receipts mentioned above, was $50,000. This was also invested, making a total investment of $100,000.

Regarding the actual situation I deem it my duty to inform you that the funds hitherto handled by the treasurer of the university aggregate $881,000. The disposal of these funds in no way involves the property of the university, its lands, buildings or equipment. The funds themselves are protected by securities, which, it is confidently believed, will, in any equitable settlement, insure the university against serious loss.

HURRYING THE WORK ON THE NEW CAPITOL

Contractors Busy Day and Night to Have Building Ready for Next Legislature.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—Contractors for the new state capitol are working day and night in order that the building may be habitable for the next legislature. Members of the capitol commission are making weekly inspections of the building and are now confident that it will be ready in time.

Twenty additional carpenters will be put to work tomorrow on the senate and house chambers and the committee rooms. Three carloads of electric fixtures have been shipped here from Philadelphia and will be installed this week. Public Buildings Superintendent Shumaker expects to begin the installation of the furniture by the middle of December.

Senator Fox of this city has prepared a bill, which he will introduce on the opening day of the session, for the extension of Capitol park from Fourth street to the Pennsylvania railroad and from Walnut to North street. The board of trade has appointed a committee, of which Mayor McCormick is chairman, to take charge of the project for the extension of the park.

The board of public buildings and grounds has postponed consideration of the plans for the construction of a wall around the capitol park and the erection of a clock tower until after the legislature has taken action on the proposed Fox bill. The estimated cost of the extension of the park and the construction of the proposed wall is $1,500,000.

Donation Day at Deaconess' Home.

Tomorrow will be "donation day" at the Pittsburgh Methodist Deaconess Home, 2000 Fifth avenue. Contributions of furniture, necessaries of life, and money will be received during the entire day. An informal reception will be held in the evening.

The best disinfectant of all is sunlight. It destroys by its very brightness all sorts of germs and at the same time helps the growth of plants and animal life. Doubtless all have noticed that mould grows during the night and in dark, damp cellars. Bright sunlight quickly destroys germs, mould or other organisms. That is why it is best to let the sunlight into your houses for its purifying influence.

At the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. Pierce, chief consulting surgeon, started experiments, some three years ago, with the Finsen light in conjunction with the X-ray in the treatment of diseases. He got excellent results therefrom, and was among the first to adapt this remarkable cure to many cases which it was formerly supposed must of necessity be treated by the knife.

Not only is Dr. R. V. Pierce notable for his surgical achievements at his hospital in Buffalo, but nearly a third of a century ago he discovered certain roots and herbs which were nature's remedies, and succeeded in putting them up in a form that would be easily procured and ready to use. This he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It maintains the patient's nutrition by enabling him to eat, retain, digest and assimilate nutritious food. It overcomes gastric irritability and symptoms of indigestion, and in this way fever, nightsweats, headaches, etc., are done away with. It fortifies the body against the germs of consumption, grip and malaria, it builds up the tissues and puts on healthy flesh.

Those desiring to know something about the body in health and disease, also medicine and surgery, without technicalities, should read the "Common Sense Medical Adviser," which can be had for 31 cents in one-cent stamps for the cloth-bound book. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

PITTSBURGHER WINS PRESIDENT'S CUP IN TOURNEY AT ATLANTIC CITY---OTHER SPORTS

C. B. FOWNES IS AGAIN A WINNER

Pittsburgher Defeats Shackelford and Phillips for the President's Cup.

MATCH ATTRACTS ATTENTION

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 20.—Two most important matches in connection with the annual fall tournament of the Atlantic City Country club were played today over the club's course at Northfield. The president's cup, which cost $150, has to be won three times and has been in competition at the club's spring and fall tournaments since 1902.

C. B. Fownes, Oakmont Country club, Pittsburgh, and W. E. Shackelford, Country club of Atlantic City, had each won two legs on it and they played off this morning to see which would have the honor of playing Frederick J. Phillips, Dyker Meadow Golf club of Brooklyn, who won the cup on Saturday. Their match was most interesting from start to finish, many of the holes being won or halved in bogey or better. Fownes proved the victor, winning by 1 up at the home green. Their cards were:

Fownes	4	5	5	5	7	5	8	4	5—48
	4	3	5	5	7	4	4	7	6—46—94
Shackelford	5	4	7	6	8	4	5	4	4—47
	4	5	6	6	6	4	6	6	6—49—96

In the afternoon Fownes met Phillips and the match attracted considerable attention. Phillips gave the youngster a hard fight. They each won four holes of the first nine and broke even at the turn. On the homeward journey Phillips won the 505-yards twelfth hole in the par golf of 5, while Fownes won the tenth in a par 3, and the thirteenth and fourteenth in their respective bogeys of 4 and 5, the other holes being halved in bogey and the match ending at the seventeenth hole with Fownes the winner by 2 up and 1 to play and the winner of the handsome cup.

Their cards were:

Fownes	7	6	7	4	6	3	6	3	6—48
	3	3	6	4	5	4	4	5	4—34—82
Phillips	5	7	6	3	7	4	6	5	5—48
	4	3	5	5	6	4	4	5	4—36—86

MANY FIGHTS ARE CARDED.

Root and Ryan to Meet Wednesday Night—Other Scrappers Will Clash.

This will be a busy week with the fight fans. There are bouts, and good ones, too, scheduled for every night, and some of the best men in the business will get together. Of course, the best event, from a standpoint of national interest, is the six-round encounter at Philadelphia Wednesday night between Jack Root and Tommy Ryan. These two are of the best in their division in the country, and, both being men of extreme cleverness and also possessing a hard punch, should put up a rattling good bout.

At Chicago tomorrow night Tommy Mowatt and Billy Finucane will meet before the Wattia club.

Tonight at Dubuque, Ia., Martin Duffy will begin his upward climb to the rank he lost last winter, by taking on Tom Wallace in a 15-round bout. Duffy was once the kingpin of the lightweights, but while in wretched condition he met Billy Mellody and was knocked out.

Wednesday night two other Chicago welterweights fight out-of-town men. Jack O'Keefe will take on Eugene Bezenah a few miles out of Cincinnati. If O'Keefe wins he will be matched with Gus Gardner at the same club a week later. Dick Fitzpatrick, who held Mellody to a draw at the C. A. A., will take on Barney Furey in a 15-round affair at the West End club of St. Louis. This should prove easy picking for Fitz, as he is much cleverer than Furey, who claims Pittsburgh as his home.

Friday night the two Forbes boys get into action. Harry is billed to meet Joe Cherry at 120 pounds at Saginaw, Mich., and Clarence takes on Mart Deveney at Denver at 126 pounds. Benny Yanger, on the same evening, meets Maurice Sayers of Milwaukee for the second time before the Badger Athletic club of Milwaukee.

SPONGE HELPS "SPIT" BALL.

Empire Holliday Clears Up Mystery to Certain Extent.

"Bug" Holliday, who umpired for a few minutes in the American association, has cleared up the mystery of the "spit" ball. His Buglets poured this tale into the ears of Ren Mulford, Jr.: "The first man I ever saw use the spit ball was Pitcher Strickett of Milwaukee. I was standing behind the plate the first day he tried it, and it came at the batter like a wet sponge.

"When it hit the catcher's glove I had to take out my handkerchief. I felt like I had a shower bath. 'That's a peach,' says I to myself. 'Wonder what he is putting on it?'

"I concluded to play detective and watched Strickett the next time he pitched, and learned the secret. When he got ready to pitch the ball I noticed that he would rub it on his glove hand. In the center of the glove was a hole, and in that hole a sponge. The sponge was saturated with some unknown substance, and when the ball was delivered it would throw a spray like a garden hose.

"I never could discover just what kind of dope Strickett used on the ball, but it was the goods all right and worked like a charm. Pitcher Chech, who will be a redleg next year, was the next to take it up, and now all the big pitchers in the National league are using the spit ball.

"It's a mistaken idea to think that the pitcher expectorates on the ball. The stuff that is kept deposited in their gloves is what does the work. What it is I never could learn, as the twirlers soon got wise to me and never gave me a chance to get a good peek into the mysterious cavity in the center of their gloves."

CRESCENTS WIN GAME.

Goal from Field Beats Steubenville, Says Manager Carr.

Manager Carr of the Crescents claims his team beat the Steubenville High school Saturday, 4 to 0. Ringer of the Crescents dropped a goal from the field, winning the game, he says. Steubenville claims there was no scoring done by either team.

The Crescents and Sycamores will practice daily for their championship game Saturday at Friendship park. They will play for the lightweight championship of Western Pennsylvania.

Players Hurt in Game.

ALTOONA, PA., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—During the first 15 minutes of play between the Altoona and Johnstown football teams yesterday two men were severly injured. Charles Graham, end for Altoona, had five ribs fractured, and End Yarnell of Johnstown had both bones of his left foot broken, the shattered ends protruding through the flesh. A few days ago another Altoona player had one of his legs fractured in the same place as a result of being tackled by Yarnell.

Basketball at Sharon.

SHARON, PA., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—A large crowd witnessed the basketball games at the Buhl club last night which resulted as follows: Sharon High school 12, Intermediates 9; Seniors 16, Young Men's class 3. The standing of the clubs in the league is as follows: Seniors and Intermediates, tied for first place; High school and Young Men's team tied for second. The Buhl basketball team will be reorganized soon.

AMONG THE PASSERS.

The champion Sterlings will open their season on Friday evening at Bohemian hall, when they face the Colliers.

The Herron Hill team would like to hear from Evans City, Manchester, East Liverpool, Marquette and Pittsburgh Lyceum.

The Smoke House team has open dates and would like to arrange games with 16 and 17-year-old teams. Call up Ed. Schmid, Bell 9487 J Court.

THOMAS M. MARSHALL.

Marshall, who is a Pittsburgher, is a member of the Yale freshman eleven. For the past two years he played on the Haverford Football team, which won the inter-academic championship one year and was second the next. He also played shortstop on the Haverford Baseball team, which won the inter-academic and inter-scholastic championship both years. Marshall also went to Shadyside academy, playing on both its football and baseball teams.

SCHOOL CAPTAINS HAVE ABOUT PICKED TEAMS

Although neither captain had his team on the ice, Arch. Williams of the champion Shadyside seven and Charles Reisfar of the Pittsburgh High school team, have a good line on the material for the opening of the Interscholastic hockey league game tomorrow night at Duquesne garden.

Shadyside and High school will practice this evening at the garden between the hours of 6:30 and 7:30, and the candidates will be tried out. Neither captain, however, will confine himself to the line-up that goes on the ice tomorrow night, as he will make changes as he thinks they are warranted.

Charlie Ahl, secretary of the league, last night said he looks for the league to come up to the fine records of the past years. Ahl will referee the games this season. Paul Harper, who has been the official timekeeper the past two years, will again serve in that capacity. The goal judges tomorrow night will be "Midget" Spuhler, High school captain of last year, and Harold Yohe, the Shadyside goal judge last season.

Capt. Williams intends to make a goalkeeper out of Alex McCracken, who played point on the East Liberty seven last year. The probable line-up of the teams is:

Shadyside.		High School.
McCracken	Goal	Reed
McCutcheon	Point	Dowling
Williams	Cover point	Johns
Herron	Forward	Van Gorder
Babst	Center	Reisfar
Patterson	Righ wing	Robinson
Mueller	Left wing	Harmer, Bright

Each team this season will have eight players instead of 10, as has been the case in former years.

GOODMAN BEATS RANDALL.

Tommy Herman Ends Kid Abel's Career as a Fighter by Giving Him a Knockout.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(Special.)—Kid Goodman of Boston made short work of Eddie Randall of St. Louis, putting the aspiring blonde youth from the World's Fair city away in the second round in the wind-up of the Chicago Athletic association's boxing show last night.

Goodman showed his superiority from the moment the boys put up their hands. He rushed at the inoffensive Randall, and with right and left short arm blows forced him to the ropes. Randall retaliated with a clever straight left. He danced away and was fast on his feet. Goodman gave him no rest, kept boring in, and finally sent him to the floor with left and right to the jaw.

Randall took the eight count and fought as hard as he was capable of. This was not much, however, and Goodman, sending in a terrific straight left to the stomach, toppled him over on his back. Randall rolled over on his face, and again got to his feet at the count of eight.

A moment later he was partly pushed down by Goodman near the ropes, and the Kid struck him on the shoulder just as he reached his knees. Randall went down once after this without being hit.

The knockout came in the second round, after Goodman had beaten the Missourian into a state of helplessness. A frightful right to the wind, delivered with all Goodman's weight behind it, sent Randall headlong to the canvas. He fell like a log, and was counted out by Referee Siler.

The semi-wind-up saw the end of Kid Abel's career as a fighter. Tommy Herman of San Francisco, substituted at the last moment because Phil Torney, Abel's original opponent, was over weight, put the once good little man down and out in the first round. Abel showed none of his old speed or aggressiveness, was beaten the moment Herman began forcing the fight, and was simply battered down and through the ropes. He tried to rise, but failed, and was counted out.

CORBETT WEIGHED 138; NELSON WOULD WAGER

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Nov. 20.—Young Corbett entertained a large gathering of sports today when he went three rounds with Billy Otts and another three rounds with the big bag. He weighed 138 pounds after the work. Trainer Harry Tuthill sprang a new program on the little Denverite by making him go on the road after dark. Tuthill says he must do this to get into condition as well as to weight. After dinner tonight Otts and Corbett did 10 miles along the road.

When exercising, Corbett's waist is swathed in many yards of flannel bandages, and over this he piled on suits of underwear and sleeveless sweaters until he appears to have a well-defined case of obesity. His legs, however, show that he is well advanced with his training and his face has thinned considerably.

When he goes on the road he is a more grotesque figure even than when he exercises indoors. The object of all this wrapping up, of course, is to induce copious perspiration, and there is a legend out at Sheehan's that the harness horses along the boulevard shy more when Corbett comes along than they do at the whizzing autos.

Corbett keeps changing his sparring partners so as to get variety into his glove work. Corbett seems to be very much interested in his sparring goes with Frank McConnell. The latter is remarkably fast and Corbett has to infuse plenty of action into his short legs to get within striking distance of the man in front of him.

Nelson's camp at Larkspur was crowded indoors with sports who came to get a glimpse of the Dane while in action. He boxed six rounds, three with Frank Rafael and three with Eddie Santry. In his boxing he cut up both his sparring partners and is practicing a new left hook to good advantage. After his work he weighed 132 pounds.

Nelson has given practical proof of his faith in his own fighting ability by asking the Hayes Valley Athletic club to advance him $1,000 with which to back himself. He heard that the odds against him were 10 to 7 and he considered the price a very tempting one.

While the club has refused to advance the amount on the plea that such a course would be highly irregular, Nelson will get as much credit for the incident as he would if he had actually placed the money.

Sewickley came within one foot of scoring another touchdown when time was called. Sewickley has defeated the Pastimes and the Primrose teams this season, and now stands as one of the best teams of its class. It has been defeated but once this year—that time by Latrobe.

JACK LONG JOINS MASSILLON ELEVEN

OTHER FOOTBALL GOSSIP

Jack Lang, the former Washington and Jefferson star tackle, was in Pittsburgh yesterday en route to Massillon to finish the season with the football team of that place. Clarke Schrontz, the former W. and J. end, is also expected to join Massillon today.

Lang, who, after leaving Washington and Jefferson, played on the Pittsburgh All-Star aggregation and other leading professional teams, began this season coaching the South Fork Y. M. C. A. team. He joined the Latrobe eleven recently and helped it beat Steelton two weeks ago. Latrobe now claims it has a clear title to the independent championship of the state. Massillon also claims the same honors in Ohio, but the Akron eleven disputes the claim. These teams will meet Thanksgiving at Massillon and each is loading up for the game. Last week both Massillon and Akron made Heston, the Michigan captain, big offers to play in the game Thanksgiving.

Schrontz is now coaching the Bethany college eleven, and if he can arrange to leave there he will join Massillon. Both Lang and Schrontz played on the Franklin team last year, which won the professional championship of the United States. Bob Shirling, Frank Piper and Doc. McChesney, other local players, are on the Massillon team.

Rivals to Meet.

Chicago and Wisconsin, although both are shut out from championship honors, give promise of fighting out the closest and keenest football battle that has been waged on a Thanksgiving day in the west in recent years when Coach Curtis' cardinal players come to Marshall field Thursday to clash with their old-time rivals, the Maroons. With two defeats this season, the Badgers are primed to end their losing streak with a victory over Stagg's team, while the Chicago men are determined to close the season of 1904 with victory.

Chicago played its first game with Wisconsin in 1894, and victories have been even, each having won five games. Three times Badger teams have trounced Chicago by scores of 30 or more, while the best showing the Maroons ever made was in 1899, when Stagg's men took the game by a 17 to 0 score.

The record of the games between the teams:

	Chi.	Wis.		Chi.	Wis.
1894	0	30	1899	17	0
1895	22	12	1900	5	39
1896	10	24	1901	6	36
1897	8	23	1902	11	0
1898	6	0	1903	15	6

In 1900 and 1901, under "Phil" King's direction, Chicago was buried under scores of 39 to 5 and 30 to 0. Wisconsin lost heavily by graduation of stars the next year and Chicago won a clear victory to the tune of 11 to 0. Largely through the influence of Eckersall's strong right leg, the Maroons chalked up 15 points on three goals from the field last year, and the Badgers crossed Chicago's goal line with but one touchdown, made in the last few minutes of play.

West Virginia's Game.

West Virginia showed good staying qualities and played a better game than was indicated by the past performances of the team Saturday against Washington university at St. Louis.

The game was one full of tangles and snarls. No less than three touchdowns were scored which were not allowed, West Virginia getting two of these, while Washington made one. The first half was stopped for nearly five minutes to allow an argument over officials.

Both teams were stronger on offense than defense. Fumbling cost Washington much ground and poor headwork more. Washington's defensive work in the first half was fair, but in the second it went to smash. Virginia carried the ball from the center of the field to the goal line on bucks and fast tackle plays, the plays netting from 3 to 10 yards.

PITTSBURGH LYCEUM ANGRY AT THE EAST ENDERS' ACTION

The Pittsburgh Lyceum management is "sore" because the East End Lyceum will use Harry McCormick, the Chicago National league baseball player, who was a star halfback two years ago on the Pittsburgh team; Hall of Yale, Hill, a college halfback, and other cracks against them Thanksgiving. Pittsburgh Lyceum claims they had an agreement to use members of Lyceums only, but, nevertheless, will play the game, which will be decided at Friendship park.

Navy Begins Final Practice.

ANNAPOLIS, MD., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—The Navy team will begin its final practice for the Army game tomorrow. There will be stiff scrub games on the first three days of the week, and on Thursday, Thanksgiving day, Coach Dashiells will give the team its final instructions on the home grounds, and on Friday morning the team will leave for Philadelphia. The Navy is confident of making the game this year a real contest instead of a walkover, as last season, but there is really little idea of a victory. The team is undoubtedly stiffer on both defensive and offensive than last year, but considering the light weight of the team, the average being about 164, the plays will probably not have the driving power to do much against West Point. The general opinion seems to be that the Army will make from two to four touchdowns.

W. and J. Showed Improved Form.

WASHINGTON, PA., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—That the Washington and Jefferson football team has developed remarkably within a week is shown by the result of the contest yesterday against Waynesburg college. The interference work was remarkable and both ends and backs skirted the ends behind a stonewall of runners who blocked every effort to tackle. The team play was much more snappy than heretofore and all the formations were marked by precision. Manager Grubbs had not this evening arranged with the Dickinson management for the officials for the Thanksgiving day contest.

Latrobe to Play Collegians.

LATROBE, PA., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—Arrangements have been practically completed with the Kittanning All-College football team for a game to be played here Thanksgiving.

SALE OF CHAMPIONS TO START IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(Special.)—Beginning Monday and continuing until the middle of the week following, Madison Square garden will be crowded with real horses and horsemen for the "Old Glory" sale. There can be no question but that the aggregation to be sold at this sale surpasses in quality any ever offered before at these or any other sales of light harness horses.

Horsemen seem to be unanimous about this. It is pre-eminently a sale of champions, including Major Delmar, 1:59¾, and 2:01¼, without pacemaker in front, champion of the world at trotting and champion gelding at any way of going; Prince Alert, 1:57, champion pacing gelding; Arion, 2:07¾, (2), champion 2-year-old trotter; Locanda, 2:03¾, champion pacing stallion of 1904; Grace Bond, 2:09¼, champion 2-year-old trotter of 1903, and 3-year-old trotter of 1904; Effie Powers, 2:08¼, champion half-mile track pacer; Sadie Mac, 2:11½, champion 3-year-old trotter of 1903; Tom Axworthy, 2:08¾, champion 4-year-old trotter of 1904; Sidney Dillon, sire of the champion trotter of the world, Lou Dillon, 1:58½, and many other performers of the highest distinction.

Forkhurst farm, belonging to the estate of the late Charles H. Kerner, closes out entirely, and there are big consignments from the farms of James Butler, J. W. Bailey, Gentry farm (home of McKinney) and Shultshurst (home of Axworthy, the great sire of 1904).

PLAYED TIE GAME.

Lawrenceville and Hill School Each Score Six Points.

POTTSTOWN, PA., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—Outweighed 20 pounds to a man, the Hill school is entitled to more of the honors in yesterday's contest with Lawrenceville (N. J.) academy than the score 6 to 6 indicates. Over 2,000 people, including 300 rooters with a brass band from Lawrenceville, witnessed the game, which was spectacular in many features, for three times the local team was held within six inches of a touchdown. The Hill scored quickly in the first half on a 42-yard run by Wylie. In the second half Fryer attempted a goal from the field, but a poor pass, a series of misplays by Hill and a 20-yard run by Crouch gave Lawrenceville a touchdown. Line-up:

Hill School—		Lawrenceville—

GOLDEN SAYS STATE IS NOT HEAVIER THAN W. U. P.

STATE COLLEGE, PA., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—In an interview here today Coach Golden said: "I object emphatically to statements giving the average weight of State's team so much greater than W. U. P. and describing the coming game as a struggle between beef and science. As a matter of fact our present varsity eleven does not average a single pound heavier than Coach Mosse's lineup. Here are our exact stripped weights, taken yesterday: Dunn, 180; Woodward, 192; White, 208; E. Wray, 176; Smith, 173; Morehead, 146; Barr, 158; Saunders, 131; McGee, 168; McIver, 174; Yeckley, 161. Average weight, 169 8-11 pounds.

"Heretofore we have sent our weights in with 10 to 15 pounds of football clothes added, but since weights are given stripped it is a matter of justice that State's should be published in the same way. The absence of Moscript and Forkum from our eleven lowers our average weight several pounds, and as we will lineup against W. U. P. next Thursday neither team will have any advantage in weight.

"The fastest, heaviest and neriest eleven will win, and let me say right here that this bunch will be wearing the white and blue."

DAVENPORT SIGNS PITCHER W. SMITH

Local Boy Goes to I. I. I. Next Year—Eastley Gets Offer from Iowa League Club.

WILL FORM NEW LEAGUE

William C. ("Lefty") Smith, the local pitcher, has signed with the Davenport club of the Three I league for next season. Smith was highly recommended to the Davenport management and it is thought there that he will be one of the leading pitchers in the league.

Smith came into local prominence last spring, pitching at Waynesburg college. He was with the independent team for a brief time, and then pitched for P. A. C. and Canonsburg. He is a good hitter for a pitcher and Davenport expects to play him in the outfield, also, because of his swatting ability. Smith is now studying dentistry. Pitcher Stauffer of Allegheny and Third Baseman Charles Alperman of Millvale, are other local players on the Davenport team.

Milwaukee Gets Camnitz.

Milwaukee is promised Pitcher Camnitz, the Pirate who was turned over to Springfield of the Three I league last summer. Manager Clarke is credited with the belief that Camnitz should have one more season's work in the minors before making his permanent bow to the majors.

Boone Wants Eastley.

Frank Eastley, the Interscholastic pitcher, is wanted by the Boone club of the Iowa State league. The Boone people have offered him the limit in salary, but he is holding off signing for next season. If he plays independent ball he will be with Homestead.

New Baseball League.

Eddie Lee, who is to manage the Dubois club next season, is working on a league. Lee and persons living in the towns wanted in the proposed league are enthusiastic and will soon begin active work on getting the organization into shape.

The towns wanted are Dubois, Osceola, Punxsutawney, Clearfield, Tyrone, Hollidaysburg and probably Phillipsburg. It will be known as the Mountain league. There will be no high salaries, it being the aim to engage not over four outside players, the rest being local talent.

Harry Tate's New Job.

Harry Tate will manage the Cumberland (Md.) independent team next season. Tate and his brother, Hugh Tate, will soon open a place of business in Cumberland, and both will play on the baseball club. Harry will probably do all the catching. He is now signing players. Tate wanted Karl Meinz, who recently signed with the Dallas (Tex.) league club, to stay over with him for the next campaign.

Will Be Independent.

The Johnstown club will not join the Tri-State league. Reports from Johnstown have it that the club owners think they can do better by playing independent baseball.

SADDLE RACE ADOPTED.

Cleveland Driving Club to Introduce New Sport at Matinees.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 20.—(Special.)—At the annual meeting of the Gentlemen's Driving club last night for the distribution of ribbons and trophies won by the members during the season, Harry K. Devereux, president of the club and one of the best known amateur drivers in the country, proposed that a new style of racing be introduced during the next season.

He suggested that at every matinee held during the season at least one race under saddle take place. This may be a trotting race or a pacing race, as the race committee of the club sees fit. Handicaps as to weights may also be provided, so that the racing may be equalized as much as possible. Mr. Devereux is fond of the saddle game. So is Mr. Billings. The latter lowered the records during the year for saddle horses. As soon as Mr. Devereux broached the subject last evening a goodly portion of those present signified their intention of entering the new game.

CHANGES IN BENNETT RACE.

Auto Club Promotes New Regulations. American Team Assured.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(Special.)—The racing committee of the Automobile club of America has announced several important changes governing entries for the James Gordon Bennett cup race team for next year.

The date of closing the entries is December 15, and the date on which the cars must be placed at the disposal of the committee has been extended from April 15 to May 1. The contestant must file with the secretary on or before May 1 an affidavit that his car has been entirely completed for a period of two weeks.

The probabilities of America having a team in the cup race for next year are very bright.

Dr. Thomas, a brother of E. R. Thomas, has ordered a $10,000 locomobile and will try for the team, and there are many more.

BUTLER GETS GEERS.

Veteran Driver Retires from Personal Business Again—Signs Contract.

LEXINGTON, KY., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—Ed Geers has signed a contract to train and drive the horses belonging to James Butler of Eastview farm for the coming three years. Geers will sell all the paraphernalia of his racing stable at private sale.

Since his retirement from the Village farm stable several years ago Geers has been training a public stable and during these seasons he has been eminently successful, always being near the top in winning drivers of the season.

GRAND OPERA OPENS TONIGHT

Herr Conreid's Season Begins With "Aida" at Metropolitan in New York.

NEW SINGERS ARE TO APPEAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Herr Conried, whose second season of management of the Metropolitan grand opera house will be inaugurated tomorrow, has considerably aroused the opera loving public by the announcement of a general broadening and freshening of the repertoire and the introduction of a number of new voices, the operas to be given ranging from the comic operas of Strauss, Flotow and Donizetti, to the music dramas of Wagner. While Herr Conried has as yet made no definite promise, it is probable he will attempt a revival of "Lucrezia Borgia," which has seldom been sung for a generation, while "Un Ballo" and Pucinni's version of "Manon Lescaut" may also be sung. "The Flying Dutchman" is also to be set and sung for the first time under Mr. Conried's management.

On the opening night Verdi's "Aida" will be interpreted by Mme. Emma Eames, who will make her reappearance in the title part after an absence of 18 months. Miss Edyth Walker will return in one of her favorite parts, Amneris, and the Radames of the night will be Caruso. Mr. Scotti will sing Amonasoro while Mr. Pol Plancon will once more resume the character of Ramfis. The interest attaching to the performance will be enhanced by the new scenery and by the restoration of dances and episodes in the temple, hitherto omitted at the Metropolitan. Mr. Arturo Vigna will conduct.

Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" will be presented on Wednesday evening with Mme. Sembrich as Lucia, Miss Bauermeister as Alisa and Mr. Caruso as Edgardo. On the afternoon of Thanksgiving day the first of the seven performances of Wagner's "Parsifal" as yet promised by Mr. Conried, will take place. The production will be on the same noble and artistic scale as last year, when Wagner's consecrational festival play was for the first time known to New York. With one notable exception—that of Kundry—the principal parts will be interpreted by the fine artists already identified with them at the Metropolitan.

One of the most interesting and important events of the season will probably be the performance, on Friday evening next, of Bizet's "Carmen," with several new interpreters. Miss Olive Fremstad, who last season sang Sieglinde and Venus, will for the first time in this country, essay the part of Carmen. Mme. Aino Ackte, the young Parisian soprano, will make her first American appearance, in the character of Micaela.

During the past few months the chorus at the Metropolitan has been greatly strengthened, the supernumeraries have been reorganized, and the scenery, costumes and accessories have been thoroughly renewed. The orchestra will be up to its accustomed standard of excellence. Opera-goers will find that various improvements have been made since last April, not only in the appearance of the auditorium, but also in details of practical interest.

SUNDAY GAZETTE GROWS BETTER WITH EACH ISSUE

Not a News Field Uncovered, Not a Feature Overlooked, Journal Makes New Friends Each Week.

Each issue of the Pittsburgh Sunday Gazette seems to excel its predecessor. Not for many weeks has there been a genuinely dull column on all of the many pages of the great journal. The Sunday Gazette's news service was always great, and it is being steadily improved week by week. The corps of feature writers grow larger with each succeeding number and the variety of their topics seems endless. The magazine has taken a position in the journalistic world from which it will be hard to dislodge it. Nothing is overlooked in this great newspaper representative of a great district, and as the time goes forward The Sunday Gazette will continue to grow in excellence and hold its place in the hearts and libraries of Sunday readers.

Saturday was a great day for news, in Europe, in America, in Pennsylvania and in Allegheny county. Matters of national interest were apparently happening every minute. And scarcely had they happened before The Sunday Gazette knew of it and had gathered and prepared the details in a manner calculated to most interest the public.

From the far east comes information that will stir those who have been following the war details. St. Petersburg hears that a mighty battle is in full swing near Mukden. Engineer Kooy of the Russian transport Kamchatka confirms the story of Japanese torpedo boats in the North sea.

Details in the coup d'etat in Panama show that Gen. Huertas had threatened President Amador, but United States Minister Barrett stiffened the president's courage and gave him to understand America would permit no revolutions. Representatives of the Zemstvos met in St. Petersburg and asked for more freedom for their people and for their greater participation in government. Mrs. Pound as lady mayoress of London will share in all state functions.

The horse show ended in New York and all records for attendance were broken. Crying need of the American navy is for scout ships. Westinghouse company lands a $1,000,000 contract in Brooklyn. Missouri's state building at the world's fair is destroyed by fire. Sells Brothers circus is robbed of $30,000 in South Carolina. Colorado supreme court sends three Denver election officials to prison for fraud. Statue of Frederick the Great is unveiled at Washington and President Roosevelt makes a speech. Steel tonnage for next year will be a record-breaker.

The palace of hoboes, located on a hillside near this city, was raided by railroad detectives. Citizens leaders call on Controller John Larkin and tell him that they are favorable to his re-election. Over 20,000 people in Allegheny county failed to correctly mark their ballots at the November election. Long idleness in local tin plate mills is ended by an order for general resumption. Oil from broken pipe line was ignited and surface of the Ohio river was covered with roaring flames. P. J. Ingoldsby, a Pittsburgher, identified with the commercial life of Colombia, talks interestingly of that republic. Council committee to give out a $10,000 job. Ordinance is drawn to raise the tax on street cars. One hundred additional prizes of $1 each have been added to the previously announced 67 prizes offered to the successful contestants in The Gazette proverb illustration competition, making a cash total of $1,100 to be distributed among 167 competitors. Allegheny County Light Company is using automobile equipped with big searchlight to find line troubles by day or night. Allegheny man burned to death in his room in a fire which caused only $200 damage. County commissioners ask permission to improve quartet of county roads. The Equitable Life Assurance society wins suit in which it was alleged a policy holder misrepresented his condition.

A monster crowd saw Yale win the annual football game from Harvard by a score of 12 to 0. Sharpsburg defeated High school 32 to 5 in their annual game at Friendship park. W. U. P. team was too strong for the Bethany college boys and won an easy game 21 to 0. W. C. Fownes, Jr., won the governor's cup, which was the leading prize in the Atlantic City golf tourney. "Happy Jack" Chesbro of the New York American league is still holding out in his refusal to sign a contract. The W. U. P. and State college authorities have come to an agreement and "Lefty" McIlveen will play with State in the Thanksgiving day game. Both Young Corbett and "Battling" Nelson are confident of victory in their coming bout.

New York stocks are less active, but prices closed firm at or near the highest points of the day. The weekly bank statement showed a decrease of $15,370,200 in loans, a decrease of $3,346,700 in cash and an increase of $695,150 in surplus reserve. Wheat breaks two cents a bushel on Argentine advices on big crops.

GREAT REVIVAL IN STEEL WORKS

Has Aroused Hopes of More Than Six Thousand Men at Steelton Plant.

BILLET MILL IS TO RESUME

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau,
HARRISBURG, PA., Nov. 20.

Following the dull period just preceding the election reaction is setting in at the Pennsylvania steel works at Steelton and has aroused the hopes of the more than 6,000 men who are dependent entirely on the plant. Excepting in a few departments, where needed repairs are being made, the entire plant is now in operation and has enough orders booked to keep it running to the full capacity for some time.

The billet mill, to which repairs are being made, will resume operations tomorrow morning and a large number of men will be given employment for several months. The open hearth department is rushed to fill orders for special steel, and there is no likelihood of slack operations in this department. In the slab mill the greatest activity is shown, and both day and night turn are used. The shipments for the last several weeks from this mill have been heavy and prospects brighten with each day.

The bridge and construction department has been working to its capacity through all the so-called dull period. Large contracts, notably that of the Blackwell island bridge, New York, with lesser contracts, have kept the shop busy at all times, and no concern whatever is felt for the future. Every department of the bridge shop is busy and work moves merrily with a double turn.

General conditions at the works are improving and it is thought that a, soon as the steel and iron pool settle prices the old days of double turns, seven days a week and 30 days to the month, will return.

WORK OF INTERNATIONAL EXCHANGE COMMISSION

Much Good Accomplished, Especially by Jeremiah W. Jenks, With the Chinese Government.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 20.—The report of the commission on international exchange regarding its work during the past year has been submitted to Secretary Hay and given by him to the public. There are submitted also some data showing a tendency toward greater stability in the price of silver bullion, apparently as a result of the systematic purchase of bullion by governments with whom the commission conferred last year, especially of the British government in connection with the currency of India. This has tended, it is declared, to produce greater stability of exchange and thus to diminish one of the obstacles to trade between the gold countries and the silver-using countries. One evidence is the ease with which the Philippines went to a gold basis.

The greatest emphasis is laid upon the special mission of Prof. Jenks to China to present to the imperial government a report on the work done in Europe in 1903 and to render any further assistance desired by the Chinese government in compliance with its request to the United States.

Aletter from the prince of Ching, the president of the grand council, indicates that China, which intends to establish a new coinage system, and had decided to remain on a silver basis, but ultimately to reach a gold basis, has about decided to go on a gold basis at once and follow the plans of the commission, if possible.

The report is signed by the three commissioners, Hugh H. Hanna, Charles A. Conant and Jeremiah W. Jenks.

SHEARER BURNED TO DEATH.

Body of Former Superintendent of Schools in Cumberland County Found in Thicket.

CARLISLE, PA., Nov. 20.—Samuel B. Shearer, former superintendent of the Cumberland county schools, was found dead in a thicket a mile south of here today. The body was badly burned. Suffering from illness he wandered from his home last night. It is believed that he fell in the thicket and matches in his pocket set fire to his clothing, and that he was burned to death.

Prof. Shearer was 52 years old. He was for seven years superintendent of the Carlisle schools and for nine years county superintendent. Ill health forced his retirement three years ago.

FOOLED UNCLE SAM.

Postoffice Clerk Conceals Her Marriage for Four Months.

The marriage of Miss Inez Murphy, who is well known in Turtle Creek and Braddock, which took place August 10, was kept a secret until yesterday because Uncle Sam does not allow his postoffice female clerks to hold positions while married.

Miss Murphy is a native of Latrobe and has filled the office of general delivery clerk in the Turtle Creek postoffice for several years. The groom was Woodward J. Howell of Clarion, Pa. The marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents in Latrobe.

EXCURSIONISTS TAKE FINAL LOOK AT THE MUMS

Many Visitors Pay Visits to Conservatory, Art Galleries and the Organ Recital.

Although in theory the Sunday of the week before was the last day of the chrysanthemum show at the Schenley park conservatory, Supt. George W. Burke was astounded at the great crowds which flocked into the conservatory to see what remained of the great display. It was not a wilted remnant, either, for visitors who had not seen the show in its prime were delighted with the chrysanthemum blooms still remaining. The flowers too far gone had been replaced with fresh ones, which Foreman John Jones had been keeping ready in the propagating houses for that very purpose.

Yesterday was the last day of the chrysanthemum show and today the workmen will be busy removing the plants and substituting flowers of the regular winter display. The next real show will open on Easter Sunday, but in the meantime the conservatory will be well worth a visit every Sunday, because of the numerous flowers which will be exhibited there all winter.

Supt. Burke and Foreman Jones have quite a job before them when they begin the replanting of the specimens in the palm house. Some of the palms have begun to show that the earth in which they are potted has lost its strength and every one will be taken from its pot, which will be filled with fresh earth.

During the past week the ducks on Carnegie lake, in Highland park, had lots of fun on several mornings, but the swans spoiled the sport, much to the disgust of the smaller waterfowl. On those mornings a thin scum of ice formed on parts of the surface of the lake and the ducks took great delight in sliding over the surface, apparently enjoying the distress of their fee brothers who broke through the ice. The swans envied the ducks and tried also to get enjoyment in skating, but their heavy bodies broke through and in their efforts to climb on the ice they destroyed the thin sheet all over those portions of the lake where it had formed.

The temporary art gallery at the entrance to Schenley park opened at 2 p. m. to admit the long line of waiting visitors, and until the closing hour, 6 o'clock, hundreds passed in to view the pictures. There was a large audience at the organ recital. Many strangers took in the gallery, recital and conservatory, the railroads having run excursions.

"Mother Goose" is Coming.

Klaw & Erlanger's colossal production of the Drury Lane spectacle, "Mother Goose," said to be the most magnificent presentment from a spectacular point of view yet shown, will be at the Nixon next Monday night with the original New York cast and ensemble, which numbers some 350 persons. The sale of seats begins Thursday morning. Like its predecessor, "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," so popular in this city two seasons ago, "Mother Goose" is a huge feast of music, rollicking fun, superb costumes and gorgeous scenic embellishments.

KS FOR END OF THE WORLD

ONE SURE, OTHER PROBABLE

The possibilities of the end of the world were discussed in the First English Lutheran church, Grant street, yesterday morning, by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. D. H. Geissinger, in his sermon on "The Impending End." He took for his text Matt. xxiv:44, "Therefore be ye ready; for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh," and said in part:

This is the last Sunday in the church year. The lessons for the day are about what are called "The Last Things." "Death," "The Coming of Christ," "The End of the World," "The Final Judgment," and other things incident to those stupendous events.

These subjects necessarily involve questions that are so obscure, so difficult of satisfactory understanding, that there has always been the widest divergence of opinion in regard to them among the greatest and most faithful Christians. Therefore in treating these profound themes it becomes us to be considerately tolerant of the views of others, and not too absolutely insistent upon our own.

But there are certain practical phases of the "Last Things" which we all substantially agree upon, and which we may at all times study with profit. That there is certainly an end impending, both for the individual and for the world. That this is true for the individual is very obvious. Death is the supreme certainty for every one of us. And that death is a constantly impending event is also clear. Death is no respecter of persons or conditions. Death is not always probable, but it is always possible.

As in the case of the individual, and of every particular creature on the earth, so for the earth itself there is an impending end. Science bears testimony to the fact which the scriptures plainly declare, namely, that this world will sometime come to an end. But the impending element or feature of the end of the world is very difficult if not impossible for any one to realize. It does not seem to me at all probable that this solid old earth is likely to be dissolved and dissipated very soon. It looks to me as if it were just beginning to reach its usefulness and to realize its real purpose. It has surely required ages to bring it to its present condition, and it seems reasonable to feel that it will abide for ages to come.

But there must be some true sense in which the end of the world is an impending event. This, I think, is from each individual's standpoint. My death is an impending event, and my death is the end of this world for me. And then, too, no one can prove the impossibility of the earth's dissolution at any moment. Many things are impossible with men; with God all things are possible.

We are entirely ignorant of the moment when the end will come, both in the case of the individual and especially in regard to the world. We have the testimony of the Lord Himself that this is God's own secret. We can make approximately accurate historical charts after the events have become history, but the man who attempts to diagram prophecy presumes to improve upon God's own method of revelation.

We are taught that there is absolute necessity on the part of every one of us for preparation, so that the end, whenever it may come, may be to us a salutary event. The emphatic word is: "Be ready." Watch and pray. This needful preparation involves everything that pertains to the personal appropriation of salvation. Repentence, faith, the new life hidden with Christ in God.

OUR SUPREME NEED.

Pastor J. W. G. Fast Tells of the Power With God and Men Essential to All.

"Our Supreme Need" was the subject of the sermon preached by the Rev. J. W. G. Fast in the Oakland Methodist Episcopal church yesterday. Pastor Fast, who but recently was appointed to this charge, took for his text Acts 1:8: "But ye shall receive power," and said in part:

What a fine old word is this word power. No sooner is it mentioned than we begin to think of that which is strong, valiant, noble; and in strength, valor and nobility we always rejoice. The Bible, being a book which deals much with strength and nobility of character, has many examples of men of power. Jacob, having been a fugitive, was returning to meet the brother whom he had wronged. When alone there came a man and wrestled with him until the breaking of the day. When the stranger left he blessed Jacob, saying, "Thy name shall be no more Jacob, but Israel: for as a prince thou hast power with God and with men."

It is this power which God gives to struggling men, and it is this power which is the "supreme need." There is a difference between what we need and what we want. Here are some disciples who wanted a kingdom. "Wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" was the question they asked the Master; but He, knowing what they needed, said, "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in His own power." How much better for them to have the power which enabled them to move things, than even the kingdom made famous by such men as David and Solomon.

We must have this power. The machinery may all be in readiness, from the basement clear to the top floor—every piece in its place, every bolt adjusted, every cog set, every nut tightened—but if you have no power you cannot make the thing go.

It will not do to say the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. God will give us power to take our place in the world's great work and strife. Two things will the power give to us. First, it will give us strength. The command is "Be strong!" Christianity must ever give to the world strong men and women, men and women who are able to do the great work which lies before them.

Second, this power will make us steadfast. Before Pentecost it was easy to unsettle these disciples, but after the power came they were steadfast and unmovable. After the power came Peter could not be turned aside, and Thomas did no more doubting, but with one purpose they went forth to bless men. To everyone who will believe in Christ is this power given. With the spirit of Christ in our lives the power will come. This is our need, and our God will supply our need.

HIS FIRST SERMON HERE.

Dr. James K. Smith of Louisville Preached to the Shadyside Presbyterian Congregation.

The Rev. Dr. James Kinsey Smith of Louisville, Ky., preached his first sermon before the Shadyside Presbyterian church yesterday morning to a very large congregation, including ministers and laymen from several other churches. At the close of the service he was given a cordial reception by the officers and leading people of the church. After saying that he was here "To look over the field, look the people in the face and shake their hands," Dr. Smith preached on "Conformity to the World," taking for his text the passage, "Be not conformed to the world, but be ye transformed in the spirit of your minds and thus show what is that good and perfect and acceptable will of God." He said:

The sendy, irrepressible and continued conflict of the ages is not caused by open iniquities, by heresy, but by that most insidious, persistent and malignant form of sin, that indefinite, invisible, impalpable something which we call the spirit of the world. Conformity to the world is a disposition, a temper, an atmosphere, and yet it has marked characteristics. A man may be honest in his business transactions, say his prayers, read his Bible, attend church, express great interest in Christianity and in the welfare of his own denomination, may be subject to much emotion under certain circumstances, when dark days of bereavement come, but still he lives in total unconsciousness of vital religion as much as if Jesus Christ had never been born into the world. In business, in politics, in the family and in social affairs such a man is moved and governed by principles which lie wholly outside of the kingdom of God. He wishes to rise in his profession, to be prominent in his social circle, to be talked about and read about in the newspapers. To be transformed in the spirit of his life he must make the Word of God his rule of faith and conduct and a conscience enlightened by the word of God. The ideal to transform every man and woman is Jesus Christ.

ELSE WERE YOUR CHILDREN UNCLEAN, BUT NOW ARE THEY HOLY, SAID PAUL

THE WESTMINSTER CONFESSION

Pastor C. T. Russell addressed a large audience yesterday in the Bible House chapel, Allegheny, from the text, "Else were your children unclean; but now are they holy."—I. Cor., vii:14. His discourse is in full follows:

For centuries our text has been one of the bulwarks of Calvinistic theology—the ground upon which the Westminster confession built its statement differentiating between elect and non-elect infants. It is only of late years that our Presbyterian friends of the Calvinistic school have withdrawn from this position, and now hold, according to their latest statement, that there is no difference in God's sight between the children of believers and any other children dying in infancy. The old expression of the confession that the children of believers only would be saved, giving the inference that all other children would go to torment, has certainly been outgrown and discarded, much to the credit of our Presbyterian brethren and much to the honor of our Creator's government.

But while our Presbyterian friends have changed their views, this text of scripture remains the same and has the same meaning that it ever had. It says not a word about the children of believers going to heaven if they die in infancy, and hence gives no inference to the effect that other infants go to eternal torment at death. Here we see the baneful effect of an error. The unscriptural doctrine that the wages of sin is eternal torment has made to appear inconsistent many of the grave and thankful teachings of God's word, and the misrepresentation put upon this text and many others, to harmonize them with the eternal torment doctrine, clings to them even after the error has to a large extent been repudiated, so that our Calvinistic friends today know not what to make of these words of the apostle—they are confusion to them. To them they still seem to teach eternal torment, and the repudiation of that thought leaves in their minds a doubt respecting the wisdom and inspiration of the apostle who wrote these words. Thus error leads to further error, to confusion and darkness. They surely do class children as clean and unclean, justified and unjustified, on account of their parentage.

Let us look at the text with, so far as possible, our minds freed from all bias and prejudice, to see just what the apostle wrote, no more and no less. He is writing respecting mixed marriages. He is advising the Lord's followers that he who marries does well, but that he who marries not does better, as respects the carrying out of his consecration vows, the giving of his entire being to the service of the Lord. He declares, however, that such a celibate life is not possible to all, and that those who choose to marry shall not be considered thereby trespassing against the divine arrangement, though he forewarned them that the assumption of marital obligations will bring them in some respects increase of trials in the Christian way. In pointing out thus the liberty of the consecrated to marry, the apostle limits the matter with the words, "only in the Lord." He would not be understood as sanctioning the marriage between a believer and an unbeliever—between a consecrated and an unconsecrated person. However, he recognized the fact that in his day and at all times it might be expected that some would come into relationship to the Lord who had previously married and who would be thus in union with unbelievers.

Children of the Mismated.

It was for the comfort and instruction of this class of believers, who had unbelieving partners, that the apostle wrote the words of our text. He meant that such should understand that the children as belonging to the believing parent, and as sharers in the blessings of God resting upon believers. The apostle takes for granted that all Christians understand that there is a "curse" resting upon the world—a curse or penalty of alienation from God through wicked works, which has been upon the human family ever since the first transgression in Eden—the curse or sentence that came upon Father Adam and Mother Eve and which has descended upon all of their posterity. The apostle's preaching was to the effect that Christ had died to relieve mankind of this penalty, this curse, this alienation and separation from divine favor and communion—that the rolling away of the curse will come by and by in God's due time, at the establishment of Christ's millennial kingdom, when all the families of the earth will receive a blessing and be brought to a full knowledge of the truth and a full opportunity for return to divine favor and to all that was lost through the original transgression. That meantime during this gospel age God is reckoning His favor to a certain class—to a little flock, to the household of faith, and that these enjoy divine favor in advance of mankind in general—before the millennial morning dawns, while it is still night, while sin still abounds and evil and trouble and sorrow and weeping.

This blessing, which comes now upon believers through faith in the precious blood of Christ, gives to such certain special privileges not enjoyed by the world. They may consider their sins forgiven; they may count the errors and weaknesses and imperfections of life as not imputed to them when not intentional; they may have fellowship with God and recognize Him as their Father and hear through the scriptures His voice speaking peace through Jesus Christ our Lord, and inviting them to progress from grace to grace, from knowledge to knowledge and from honor to honor, changing and transforming the characters of the obedient until by and by they may attain to all the blessed provisions of the heavenly calling—the divine, spiritual nature and joint heirship with Christ in His millennial reign.

The words of our text were addressed to this class. Realizing as they did that a divine sentence rested upon the whole world, and that they themselves had escaped it only by hearing the gospel and accepting its terms, they could see readily enough that where both parents were believers and in fellowship with God the children of such would naturally and properly inherit this relationship, just as when Adam and Eve got out of harmony with God all of their children inherited their lack of harmony. But now the question that the apostle is discussing is, what about those families in which only one parent belongs to the Lord through justifying faith? What would be the status of the children in such families? Would they be justified children or would they be of the world, unjustified, strangers, aliens, foreigners from God and His blessings and promises?

Children of Believers Favored.

The apostle's answer shows us conclusively the divine mind on this subject, namely—that where one of the parents is a child of God his children during the period of their infancy, until such time as they attain a personal, moral responsibility, are counted as justified from sin and in relationship with the Lord, as privileged, therefore, with their parents to approach the throne of heavenly grace, to speak of and think of God as their father and themselves as the objects of divine favor. On the contrary the children of unbelievers are, like their parents, out of harmony with God, strangers, aliens, foreigners, children of Adam, under Adamic condemnation and alienation. Such children are, according to the inspired testimony of our text, "unclean"—in the same sense that all sinners are unclean in God's sight, unworthy to come into his presence, not subject to special providences of this gospel age, which are exclusively for believers and their families.

It should be borne in mind, however, that while the scriptures clearly indicate that the Lord preserves this attitude of opposition and condemnation against all out of Christ, it does not signify any hatred of the sinners as individuals, but rather the maintenance of the general law of righteousness by which the Lord differentiates between the faithful and the unfaithful, the justified and the unjustified, not with a view to doing injury to the unjustified but the very reverse—to the intent that the unjustified may realize their conditions as being without God and having no hope in the world, to the intent that they may "feel after God" and find him, and find Christ whom He has set forth as the way, the truth and the life, and by whom alone there is access to the Father's favor. That God has no unkind sentiments toward unbelievers the scriptures assure us, telling us that it was when we were all sinners that Christ died for the ungodly, and that in Him God manifested divine favor toward the whole world lying in sin and condemnation. They assure us that the time is coming when all of these unbelievers shall receive a great blessing at the Lord's hand through the glorified Christ and the glorified church in the millennial kingdom, and the blessed conditions which will then prevail in the world, scattering all the darkness and superstition and error and misrepresentation, and making the entire plan of God clear as the noonday sun, that all may see, that all may accept, that all may be blessed.

It is entirely proper, however, that the Lord should confine the blessings of this gospel age to the believing class, because He seeketh only such as can and will exercise faith and an obedience based on that faith. Whoever has the faith without the obedience is not acceptable to the Lord and will soon find his faith waning, disappearing, because "faith without works is dead." And whoever cannot exercise the faith cannot be of the class which the Lord is now selecting from the world. We are of the opinion that some, through the fall, through heredity, are so constituted that it is impossible for them to come under the conditions of the divine call of this gospel age. Such will find themselves able to walk by sight by and by when the millennial morning has dawned and the Sun of Righteousness shall have arisen, but they cannot walk in the narrow way of this present time without faith, and hence they cannot be the recipients of the opportunities and privileges now being extended to believers.

If all could see clearly how the whole world is unclean in God's sight—Adam and all his children and all their children—they would see what the scriptures mean by the repeated declaration that we all need to be washed in the blood of the Lamb, washed from our sins, cleansed from our sins through the merit of Christ's sacrificial death—the death of the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world. Ultimately it is to take away the sins of the whole world, but not yet. First that blood is applied during this age for the cleansing merely of believers, for those who will exercise faith and strive to be obedient to the Lord, by and by the Lord's gracious arrangements will be open to the whole world, after the believing class shall have been specially favored by the privilege accorded to it. Look now at our text, "Else were your children unclean; but now are they holy"—washed, cleansed, justified through the blood of Christ, because their parents, being in this attitude, in this relationship to God, the children are in the same relationship, just as the children of the uncleansed are unclean from the divine standpoint.

Advantages of Children of Believers.

The apostle clearly intimates that there is a difference, a great difference, between the unclean children of the unclean and the clean children of the justified, the blood washed. What is the difference? We answer that unbelievers cannot expect to understand, to appreciate the difference—their unbelief, their lack of faith on other subjects, would hinder them also in respect to this one; but those who believe in their own cleansing and who know their own relationship to God can have full confidence that their children also, during the period of infancy, are as much under divine care and protection as themselves. As the parent rejoices in the divine promise that all things shall work together for good for him, he may rejoice in this promise as being applicable also to his children in their earthly affairs. When he rejoices in the divine promise that God will not permit us to be tempted above that we are able, but with the temptation will provide also a way of escape, he may also apply this in reasonable measure to his children, and know the protecting care will give all necessary shielding and assistance to those children. As the believing parent recognizes that "Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivereth them out of them all;" and when he recognizes that these afflictions are often the Lord's methods for bringing Him valuable lessons and experiences, so on behalf of His children also he estimates that God in His wisdom and love may permit difficulties and afflictions to come upon them, but with the eye of faith He sees the outcome—a blessing.

How many of the Lord's people who were born in this justified or cleansed condition, in our text called "holy," in looking back can see that the good hand of the Lord was over them even in early childhood, so that many of the interests and affairs of life were shaped to their advantage. We do not by this mean that they were born with silver spoons in their mouths, nor that they had more than heart could wish of earthly luxuries; but on the contrary we mean that they can see that the proper, moderate and middle course in which the Lord directed their interests and affairs was probably the most beneficial course for him. They can see how the trials and difficulties of life were so wisely shaped and so skillfully tempered to their conditions that they were helped through the difficulties and trials which otherwise might have turned them to destruction or have discouraged them, or have permitted them to go on in ways that would have led them far from the paths of righteousness and joy and peace in the Holy Spirit.

The favor of our Lord mentioned in our text applies specially to this present life. Children dying in infancy without coming to years of discretion, understanding and responsibility, cannot be said to be overcomers of the world of the flesh or of the adversary. They died before reaching years of personal responsibility, either good or bad, and hence they could have no part or lot in the great reward which the Lord has proffered to the church, and on account of which the present testings and trials are given to the church to prove them, to develop character in them, to bless by trials and tribulations work out for them a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

Children dying in infancy fail of these trials and testings in the school of Christ, and thus evidently fail also to attain the prize, the reward, specially held out to those that only fight a good fight and finish their course, and who, otherwise, by means of their talents and bounties, shall be granted an abundant entrance into the glorious things of the divine kingdom, in joint heirship with their Lord. Hence the children of believers and the children of unbelievers in the resurrection morning will find themselves all well favored of the Lord under the general blessings that will fill the whole earth at that time; and the only advantage that we can suggest that the children of believers would possess would be that there would be fewer of the natural marks of sin in their character, fewer of the stains of sin, less to fight against and overcome when they, with the remainder of mankind under these favorable conditions, will be started upward on the highway of holiness. We may assume that with the better birth, the result of a better parentage, these would be better prepared for the millennial conditions and make more rapid progress toward human perfection than the unwashed, unclean children of unbelievers.

Thus does the Lord, not only in respect to the present life, but also in respect to the future one, show mercy unto thousands of them that love Him and keep His commandments and unto many generations, and thus also we see that He has permitted the stain of sin to pass from generation to generation to the third and fourth and many generations of those who hate Him and who have neglected His counsel, that ultimately, therefore, all mankind shall have glorious opportunities, the Lord has placed a special promise, a special reward, upon those who in the present time become His people, and he allows this blessing to extend to their posterity up to the time when they shall have reached years of discretion and individual choice.

This period of personal choice varies with each individual. Some seem to have discerning minds quite early in life—say 12 to 15 years of age—others develop more slowly and seem not to reach the state of personal accountability until much later in life, while others seem to never reach such judgment that we may reasonably question whether or not at all in the present life a personal responsibility, and this latter class, we believe, is by no means a small one. They are still in Adam, his condemnation is still upon them, they have not escaped it, they are still unclean. But when the great High Priest shall have come forth at His second advent to give to the world the blessings secured by His sacrificial death, it will mean not the taking of these to heaven nor the making of them perfect, but it will mean the opening of the eyes of their understanding and the rendering to them of such assistance in their moral, physical and religious uplift as they need.

Moral Free Agency.

Respecting the children of believing parents—the Lord's providences over them are not to be understood as operating contrary to their wills, but merely as favors by providential dealings and the proper direction of those wills. When years of discretion are reached the child—believer can no longer claim for himself the covering of his parent's faith and obedience. His conscience, his reason, as well as the instruction of his parents and teachers, should make this matter clear to the unfolding mind of youth, and the period of individual responsibility looked forward to should be anticipated as a time and opportunity for a full personal consecration to the Lord, to walk in His ways and in fellowship with all those who are walking in the same narrow way of faith and obedience. Thus does the child of a believer pass from its embryo or chrysalis condition to the fullness of life, guided by the hopes and promises set before the Lord's people in His word.

True, not every child of the consecrated takes the proper course. Many, alas, attracted by the offers of the world, the flesh and the adversary, find pleasures along those lines and thus slip away from their cleansed or justified condition. Some of these may never return, may become so ensnared by the adversary that they will lose all the faith and hope and make void all the faith and hope, all the precious instruction received in childhood. Such a result to parental labors must necessarily be very discouraging, and seems to be contrary to the accepted law as set forth in the word of the Lord, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." It would be far from our wish to charge believing parents with all the misdemeanors of their children. We leave to the Lord to make clear and plain to all by and by wherein lay the fault in such cases, and why the good promises of His word were not realized. We would be inclined to fear, however, that in the case of such believers false doctrines or misrepresentations of the divine word had hindered them from leading the godly life and teaching their children the truth, which might have stopped them from taking a wrong course.

Undoubtedly there are nominal believers and true believers—those of little faith and those of much faith. It is not for us to attempt a judgment of our fellows, but it is for us as believers to apply to our own hearts the precious promises and consolations of the Lord's word. I say, therefore, to true believers who have works as well as faith, "Be not discouraged. Your work shall be rewarded. Your patient waiting, training of your children, your prayers on their behalf, your consecration day by day to train them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and by word and act to set them the proper example—your endeavor even before their birth to favor them by prenatal influences and to manifest toward them the fruits and graces of the Holy Spirit—these labors are not in vain. Even should the child for a time prove wayward, trust firmly in the Lord; continue earnest and instant in prayer, and we believe the results will justify your faith and perseverance.

From quite a number have we heard at various times that the thought of the faith and godliness of parents, and of their prayers, had come often to mind, and had frequently influenced them for good more than anything else, and had finally resulted in their full turning to the Lord and full consecration to do His will. Remember, that the Lord deals with them as free moral agents. He always recognizes the freedom of the will. He cannot change this feature of His general dealing on your account or on any account, but He can and evidently frequently does grant to the children of believers such providential care, such discipline, such experiences as open eyes the more clearly to discern between right and wrong, between justice and injustice, between wisdom and unwisdom, between God and Mammon. Having done your part, leave all the results in the hand of the Lord. Rest assured that He will do all that can properly be done for the highest interests of those you have committed to Him, according to His own arrangement.

Wesley Commended, but Not in All.

Brother Wesley properly stands high in the estimation of all true Christian people, and the movement which he headed and which today is represented by many large and influential Methodist bodies had its excellent features, but one of its prominent teachings has been productive of much distress and misunderstanding on the part of many of the best of Methodists. Nor is this to be wondered at; on the contrary, it would have surprised us had Methodism grasped every feature of divine truth more clearly and cogently.

Each prominent denomination represents, or was intended to represent, some reform movement. Calvinism marked the rebellion of consecrated minds against lax views respecting the sovereignty of God, His wisdom, His power to accomplish His will and His promises. In its zeal it carried many of its propositions to extreme conclusions, yet on the whole it gave strength and tone and character to Christian thought, and these have not fully lost their power to this day, though many of the extremes have been discarded. Similarly, Methodism was a rebellion against certain laxities and perversions of the truth in the day of its originality. Wesley perceived that formalism had taken the place of vital Christianity with the great mass of professing churchdom of his time. He perceived that there was much praying to the Lord with the lips while the heart was far from Him—that many who had neither part nor lot in Christ had come to regard themselves as Christians. That time was in many respects like the present, in more and more coming to pass—everybody was regarded as a Christian who was not a Jew or an infidel. Wesley perceived that the matter of personal consecration was being overlooked, and that membership in a church, attested to by a "christening" in infancy, was deceiving multitudes, who, as a consequence, had a self-satisfied feeling, their religion consisting in an occasional or regular attendance at worship and little more.

It was against such conditions and with a view to awakening thought on the subject, with a view to differentiating between the truly consecrated and the merely nominal professor, that the Wesleyan movement was started. It was admirable in this particular, but it made the mistake of ignoring the fact that among the nominal Christians there were some true ones, and that the children of these true Christians, as our text shows, are justified in God's sight. True, these as compared with the whole are few; and did not Jesus call not even the larger proportion of Wesley's efforts, but they should not have been totally ignored.

The circumstances which called forth the Wesleyan movement directed its energies somewhat at a tangent, teaching that without exception every human being was through the fall a child of wrath and must feel the burden of sin upon his heart and the divine wrath against him, and must repent, go to the altar, or wherever his conference the profoundest revolution in his life, in his heart, in all of his sentiments. Much of this was entirely right as respects the vast majority of humanity—except that Brother Wesley, laboring under the delusion that the Bible teaches eternal torment, according to the various misinterpretations of it handed down from the dark ages, preached not that the wrath of God is revealed against all unrighteousness in the shape of sorrows and deaths that are all about us, but preached on the contrary that the wrath of God manifested in the present distresses is not a circumstance to the indescribable eternal torture of the future.

Eliminating this awful, indescribable, God-dishonoring teaching of eternal torment we are ready to indorse much that Brother Wesley taught respecting the alienated condition of sinners, respecting the creature's need regarding all the features of His gracious plan of salvation. We urge, with Brother Wesley, the only way in which the world can approach God is by faith and repentance and reformation of life and a full consecration of all to Him and His service, and that until these steps be taken no individual can properly be classed as a Christian, or consider himself in any wise related to the Lord because born of parents in so-called Christian land—not a bit more than could the heathen residing in a heathen land. The scriptural teaching on the subject is clear, that only by faith and obedience can we become united to the Son, and only through the Son can we have relationship to the Father.

A Methodist Brother's Dilemma.

Brother Wesley's extreme view overlooked and ignored the class of people represented in our text—the children of believers who were not born "unclean"—not born children of wrath, but though the consecrated parent were born in a justified condition or relationship toward God. There are some of this class in the Methodist churches as well as outside of them, and to these certain features of the Wesleyan doctrines they profess have proved to be snares causing great disquiet of mind, sometimes to the extent of utter loss of faith in everything religious. Thus it is with every error, great or small; it is sure to have its baneful effect. It is like so much poison in the family baking.

Not long since, while in a railway train, a Methodist brother, a stranger to me, left another seat and came over and sat down beside me to tell me of a difficulty under which he had labored from the beginning of his Christian experience, but which he had feared to tell to others. He said: "For years I have been a member of the Methodist church and taken an active part in its services, and yet I have never felt what our church teaches should be the experience of everyone who is a Christian—I have never had what our people describe as conversion. I never had that feeling of deep sinfulness, nor did I, when I made a consecration to the Lord in the Methodist church, experience the remarkable things which many of our people tell us and which our religious books lead us to believe are the only true marks of a change of heart, of a true conversion, of full acceptance with God. Not having had those ecstatic experiences related by others, I have for years fought against three doubts: (1) Whether or not others were mistaken in what they described; (2) Whether or not I was the one who had failed to get the Lord's blessing and acceptance, or (3) Whether or not the whole matter were not a delusion and Christian experiences largely made up of imaginations according to the various bents of mind. According to the general teachings of our church I am not a Christian at all, because I have not had these ecstatic experiences connected with what our church standards recognize as a true conversion. Now, Brother Russell, what is my real standing as you see it—according to the scriptures?"

I questioned the brother first: Did he believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as his personal Redeemer? Did he accept, as his ransom price, the sacrifice of our Lord finished on Calvary? Had he repented of sins and, so far as possible, made restitution for any wrong doing? Was he now seeking to live righteously, godly and soberly? All answers to these questions were in the affirmative. I said, "Then, dear brother, you may rest assured that according to the scriptures you are justified in God's sight, your sins are covered with the merit of Christ's righteousness and you are no longer a stranger, alien, foreigner—no longer a child of wrath even as others. Now let me ask you, Were your parents believers in the Lord as their Redeemer, and were they, do you think, consecrated to the Lord at the time of your birth, either of them or both of them?"

He answered that they were both truly consecrated believers in the Lord, so far as he was able to judge.

I replied, "Then, my friend, I see the reason why your experiences should be quite different from those of the world in general not so born."

I called his attention to our text and the explanation of it now presented to you, and said to him, "The more you will think over this matter the more you will appreciate the responsibility of your having under such circumstances the same experiences which some others might have. Conversion signifies to turn about, to take an opposite course; but from infancy reared in the nurture and admonition of the Lord by godly parents, your course was undoubtedly directed in the line of righteousness, reverence toward God.

"For you to have turned about or be converted would have meant the reversal of all this, turning to sin and unrighteousness and away from God. You will thus see, dear friend, that conversion was not what you should have expected.

"On the contrary, the man or woman whose life has been that of rebellion against God, or carelessness and disregard of Him and of all obligations to Him and to the principles of His government, such a heart recognizing the Lord, belief and acceptance would mean conversion or turning over, changing about from going after sin and unrighteousness to seeking after and pursuing the Lord and His way. To such a person such a change would indeed mean a reformation in life; but you, who from infancy have been pursuing this proper course with more or less of desire and earnestness, could not expect to experience a mental or moral reformation any more than you could expect a physical one.

Defective Wesleyan Doctrine.

"The Wesleyan doctrine is defective, dear brother, on this point. It has not only disturbed your mind and hindered you, but others from properly attaining the peace of God which passeth all understanding. What should have been presented to you was this: Born in a justified relationship to God, under His providences you have come to the present time in sympathy with Him and the principles of His government, and desirous of avoiding sin and realizing Christ as your redeemer. Now there is another step for you to take, namely—you should realize that, having been bought with a price, you have no right to regard yourself as your own, but should consider that every talent and power that you possess belongs to Him who bought you with His own precious blood. Moreover, your experiences up to this time demonstrate to you the impossibility of pleasing self and pleasing the world and at the same time pleasing the Lord, and you should be ready for the second great step set before us as believers, namely, a full consecration of yourself to the Lord. This should have been set before you, dear brother, long ago. You have been starving for years, and your Christian life has been correspondingly stunted because of the mistake made in your spiritual bill of fare. You should at once heed the apostle's words, given, not to sinners, aliens, strangers, enemies, but to 'brethren,' saying, 'I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God (the forgiveness of your sins, etc.) that ye present your bodies living sacrifices, holy, acceptable to God, your reasonable service.'"—(Rom. xii:1.)

Those who under the gospel call have taken the steps which the apostle here outlines pass from what the scriptures term the "household of faith" into what they term membership in the "body," "The royal priesthood," who present their own bodies living sacrifices upon the altar of the Lord, and being sanctified, are made acceptable through the precious blood of Christ. Those who never take this step of full consecration to the Lord are not to be of the royal priesthood, are not of the body of Christ, the "elect church," will not become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ, their Lord, because they do not "suffer with Him" that they may also be "glorified together."—(Rom. viii:17.)

Very many are in the same condition of mind as was that Methodist brother, because, misled by an error, they had failed to grasp, to appreciate the grace of God which had already blessed and favored them and put them upon a different plane of relationship to the Lord from the world in general. I am aware that we are living in a day of general skepticism both in pulpits and in pews, in a day when the words of the apostle in our text are treated lightly by those who have failed to make profession of faith, should esteem them very highly indeed as the words of inspiration. We cannot help this so far as the mass of Christendom are concerned, but we can say today, as the Lord said more than 18 centuries ago, "He that hath an ear to hear let him hear." And hearing, if he have the heart to obey let him obey.

It is to such as have the hearing of faith and the obedience of heart that the Lord's blessings and mercies during this gospel age are specially extended. By faithfulness to Him we may become His jewels and, ultimately, His crown of glory. His promise is to those only who be gathered to Himself "in the day when He comes to make up His jewels." (Mal. iii:17.) Then will come the great work of this selected, self-sacrificing, polished and prepared company—Christ and His followers in the "narrow way." They are to be God's missionaries and representatives to the world will be speaking during the millennial age, when all the world shall be made to hear the message of divine favor and love and to understand the demands of the divine law; when the willing and obedient shall be assisted step by step up to full perfection of mind and body, until the entire world of the human race shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of God as the waters cover the great deep.

SPOKE ON THE INHABITANTS OF THE OTHER WORLDS

The Rev. Dr. W. A. Stanton Gives Congregation His Impression on Long Unanswered Question.

The Rev. Dr. W. A. Stanton preached to his congregation in the Shady Avenue Baptist church yesterday morning on the unanswered question of the ages: "What if Other Worlds Are Inhabited?" The pastor announced that he did not take it upon himself to solve this controversy of years, but took privilege to express an impression. He said in part:

This has always been a question of great interest, but none have satisfactorily answered it. Books have been written about it, physical science has delved into it to find out about it, religionists have theorized and argued, it still remains an unsolved problem. I do not presume to be able to settle it tonight, but I have an idea to which I wish to give expression; to me it is a suggestive idea, to say the least; it may prove thought-provoking to you, whether you agree with it or do not.

At this point Dr. Stanton called all the old-time discussions about possible planetary life by such men as the Herschels, Thomas Chalmers, Dick, Isaac Taylor, Richard A. Proctor and Prof. Whewell of Cambridge. All except the last favored such life, though none could give scientific proof. Alfred Russell Wallace, LL. D., has written his book on "Man's Place in the Universe," and decided that physical science must decide that there is no planetary life except on our planet. That is to say, Dr. Wallace thinks he has proved a negative by physical science that deals in positives. Then the preacher went on to say that what he objected to in Dr. Wallace's book was the entire setting aside of theological views as having nothing to do with the subject. Dr. Stanton said:

The time may come when psychological theology may have more to say upon this question than physical science. Haeckle, in his "Riddle of the Universe," never went beyond the material universe to explain the universe; that is, he studied processes only. There are things that cannot be explained that way; we have to go back to first source and on to their end before we can understand them. The universe seems to be one of those things, man is another. If that is true, it is no wonder that physical science fails here, for it deals only with matter and processes. It will not do for this department of science to sweep the universe clear of all life outside of this the world on earth, of material tests alone. But that seems to be what even so able a man as Dr. Wallace has tried to do.

The one idea I offer is this. Jesus said, "In my Father's house are many mansions." Then he added, "I go to prepare a place for you." Is there anything in the Bible or out of it that forbids this interpretation of His words? In my Father's universe are many worlds; I go to prepare one of them to be a dwelling place for you when your life in this present world ends. Heaven is God's throne, earth is His footstool, but the universe alone is His "house" and in it He is omnipresent. The Greek word translated "mansions" literally means dwelling places. Did Jesus mean to teach that other worlds are, or at least are to become, dwelling places for immortal souls? Our disembodied souls may be able to find them even though physical science fails so to do.

BUSINESS LIFE RELIGION.

Pastor R. C. Douds Preaches on Advantages Instilled Into Commercialism by Faith.

"Religion in Business Life," was the sermon theme of the Rev. R. C. Douds in the North End United Presbyterian church last evening. The pastor dwelt upon the essential features that enter into business life by the application of religious principles and took for his text Phil. ii:4, "Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others." He said in part:

This is a business age, and in the magnificent enterprises of this business age the American people stand in the fore front. Around the world the name America is the synonym for commercial efficiency and energy. In the pace set by American competition is there any room for religion? I believe there is, and I believe it because many of the leading business men of the country today are preeminently religious men. I know religion can be applied to business, because thousands of honest business men are so applying it today.

Then I believe business men recognize the fact that the business world needs religion if it is to get on prosperously. It needs the honesty and confidence and truthfulness that can come only from religious influence and convictions. Without the principles of morality, which the religion of the Bible teaches, modern business life would be simply impossible. I believe business men need the help of religion to bear the strain and worry of their life. They need the help of that unseen partner to stand by their desk, saying in every crisis, "My grace is sufficient for you."

What will religion do for a business man's life? First of all, it will make him a better business man. A man's first great duty is to his occupation. If you are in the place you ought to be, your work is a God given work and no amount of prayers and religious cant will atone for slovenly work. Religion says your primary duty is to be "diligent in business."

Then religion will put right above every other consideration. Religion in business may mean loss in dollars and cents. The methods by which fortunes are made and success achieved in these days will not all stand the test of religion. All honor to the men who have lost in business rather than do wrong, who have lost in the race for success, but who have won in the race for character.

The principle of our text if applied to modern business would right all the wrongs, redress all the grievances, and take all the unkindness and injustice out of our modern business life. But before a man can apply religion to his business he must first get the religion. And for it he must go to Jesus Christ, for grace and truth came by Him. He is the only source of that grace which makes men patient and considerate, and that truth which makes them honest in all their relations.

Commencement Exercises to Be Held.

Commencement exercises of the Allegheny teachers' training class of the Allegheny County Sabbath School association will be held in the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Allegheny, tomorrow evening. Prof. W. L. Smith of the Allegheny High school has been instructor and graduated 54 pupils in the year just closed. The object of the meeting tonight is to organize for the coming year. Addresses will be made by local clergymen and Sunday school superintendents.

Dedication Takes Place Next Sunday.

Accompanying an illustration of the handsome new $25,000 Presbyterian church at Ligonier, Pa., which appeared in Saturday's issue of The Gazette, it was erroneously stated that the dedication would take place yesterday. The edifice will be consecrated next Sunday, with the Rev. Dr. David Gregg, president of the Western Theological seminary, preaching the dedicatory sermon in the morning.

Victim of Football Game.

BETHLEHEM, Nov. 20.—Samuel Hess, a senior at Lehigh university, son of former State Senator J. S. Hess, died last night from concussion of the brain superinduced by being thrown in a flying tackle in a football game at Hellertown, Saturday afternoon.

ANNIVERSARIES ARE CELEBRATED

RAILROAD TO BUILD HOME

Two local branches of the Young Men's Christian association celebrated anniversaries yesterday. The East Liberty branch observed the 30th anniversary of its inception with special services in the East Liberty Presbyterian church, while the Pennsylvania railroad division at Pitcairn celebrated its 21st birthday, in the railroad shops at Pitcairn. Both celebrations took place in the afternoon.

During the celebration at Pitcairn, Robert Pitcairn, the principal speaker, made the encouraging announcement that he would guarantee that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company would take steps toward the erection of a modern building for the Young Men's Christian association at that place, before the expiration of the coming year.

Judge Joseph Buffington presided at the celebration of the East Liberty branch in the East Liberty Presbyterian church, and opened the service with a short address on the work accomplished and ideal aims of the organization. The Rev. Dr. William L. McEwan offered prayer and the Rev. Dr. R. M. Russell read from the scriptures.

The principal address was

Speculative Department Will Experience No Evolution While the Bond and Investment Demand Is Strong and Healthful.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—While the bond and investment demand in the financial market continues as strong and as healthful as at present, there is very little likelihood of any pronounced change in the speculative department of Wall street. The same conditions do not govern entirely investment purchases and speculative adventures, but the latter certainly draw sustenance and support from the well-nigh irresistible movement now in progress in the sound and safe division. The wonderful absorbing power of investment, illustrated during the week, not only in the immediate sale of $25,000,000 Rock Island refunding bonds and in the over-subscription to the $50,000,000 Japanese 6 per cent loan, but in numerous other quarters, gives a certain air of credibility to speculative activity, even at prevailing high prices, and has apparently made possible the manipulative marking up of many securities of doubtful and problematical value.

It is certainly not as a result of consideration given to value, security or conditions that bankrupt and crippled properties have been recently enhanced. Such matters do appeal to the investor, but play little part with the speculator, at this stage of the market. Earlier in the movement, unquestionably careful discrimination did enter as a factor in stock purchases, but there is very little if any discrimination now.

It is unquestionably true that all markets require some manipulation to get them started. The practice has prevailed in the past, and doubtless in the present instance finds indorsement in very high quarters where the employment of shrewd and masterful operators to "get things going" is a recognized feature. But tactics which may find justification at one price level with a certain group of properties, or upon a certain occasion, may be entirely reprehensible when applied upon other occasions and under other conditions. One cannot glance over the list of properties recently made active, and even admitting the existence of cheap and abundant money, good crops and improving business conditions, fail to discover a marked disposition on the part of pool and clique operators to advance many of the least meritorious properties on the list to unwarranted heights.

Nearly every conservative and far-seeing man, while admitting the strong fundamental position of industry and finance, has expressed the opinion that the present range of prices has discounted already such improvement as has been accomplished and such as is in sight for months to come. It is action under this belief, possibly, that explains some of the heavy realizing and distributive sales, taken of standard issues which have taken place in recent days in the security market. Possibly the reinvestment of funds thus released in the bond market accounts for some of the activity in that quarter. But the danger of over-speculation and indiscriminate speculation in the market at this time arises not only from the high level to which prices have been advanced, but from the fact that the market has been supported by abnormally easy money, which cannot for all time continue, and that in later days it has been based more upon anticipation than by any substantial results yet achieved in productive industry or profitable trade.

The bond and investment was the bright spot of Wall street during the week, and to that department persons who are not in harmony with some of the speculative movements may turn with hopeful confidence. It is highly gratifying that up to the present time the speculative movements have not injured the quarter of the market where true improvement finds reflection.

When the speculative movement was at its height bonds became unsalable, and one reason given was that conservatism had gone to the winds and the entire community was engaging in a speculative debauch. It is not so now. Even the brokers who report increased participation in the stock market from outsiders, note that it is not of the extent of previous movements, while most persons regard the speculation as of professional or semi-professional origin. It seems evident, then, that the activity in the bond market, continuing coincidentally with the speculative movement, indicates that there is still an important element in the market which is conservative, and has not yet been lured into unsafe ventures.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN THE LOCAL MARKETS

All Lines of Trade Showed a Decided Improvement Over Conditions of Last Week.

Although there were no startling features to the local markets last week the term was generally satisfactory. There was a steady improvement in all lines, due to two causes.

Primarily the dealers consider the near approach of Thanksgiving the cause of the improvement. Secondary to this, and the real groundswell which will help hold the improvement after it is secured, is the fact that every person has settled down after the excitement of the national campaign and business of every character is improving throughout the country. The general improvement which has taken place in industrial lines is having a big effect on the markets and dealers are cheerful at the prospects for an excellent business during the winter season.

The slump which has taken place in the price of grain has eased off the feeling in the flour market and the expected advances of last week did not materialize. It was generally thought at this time last week that flour would go up from 10 to 20 cents a barrel during the week. The downgrade figures in the speculative market checked this tendency to rise and it is even suggested now that a reduction next week may be in order.

Sugar did not take another step upward last week, greatly to the relief of the retailers who are handling it now without a profit, but entirely for the accommodation of customers. This condition will probably be maintained for some time, as the refiners show no disposition to furnish any relief to their customers.

In the fruit line grapes are rapidly disappearing from the market. Only 20 cars were held in stock Saturday and but few new arrivals are looked for at this season. Pears are also drawing near their end and another week or two will see the end of all domestic fruits except winter-keeping stock. Potatoes are holding the market well, although the arrivals have been heavy and there is a good stock on hand.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts.

Receipts of hay and grain in the local yards Saturday were as follows: Pennsylvania lines, 24 cars hay, 5 cars oats, 2 cars oats and corn, 1 car rye, 2 cars corn, 1 car mixed feed; Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 7 cars hay, 3 cars feed; Baltimore & Ohio, 4 cars hay, 2 cars oats, 1 car corn, 2 cars straw.

Business in the hay and grain line last week was decidedly improved over the week before. There was an increasing demand for clover hay, and prices of that commodity moved up in response. The demand for shelled corn continued as great as ever and the supply of new corn coming in was not heavy enough to affect the market. It is not believed the new crop will have much effect in this line until the weather gets colder and makes shipment more certain. Rye straw is still in great demand, as are also oats and wheat. The feed situation remains about the same as it has for several weeks. Prices are considered much too high by conservative dealers, and there is not the movement in these lines which might be desired.

Fresh eggs are the scarcest thing in the market and it is almost impossible to get enough to supply the trade. The price has gone to 28 and 29 cents for strictly select stock and it is generally believed it will be 30 cents by the end of this month. In spite of such extremely high prices there seems no supply from which to draw. The butter market is said to be easing up a little and dealers do not anticipate another advance for the present. Some claim, however, that butter will be 30 cents at High by December 1 and this would mean a decided advance here.

Receipts of fruit during the week were comparatively light. The stock held over Saturday was as follows: Apples, 61 cars; bananas, 12; cabbage, 68; carrots, 2; celery, 2; cranberries, 1; grapes, 20; lemons, 2; onions, 18; oranges, 6; pears, 4; parsnips, 1; potatoes, 117; pumpkins, 1; squash, 1; sweet potatoes, 4; turnips, 5; miscellaneous, 6.

WHEAT MARKET BROKE TWO CENTS A BUSHEL

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Argentine advices, claiming that there will be a mammoth crop in that country, were partly responsible for a break of over two cents a bushel in wheat prices here today. Continued heavy movement of the wheat crop in the northwest was an additional bearish factor. At the close December wheat was down 2½c; May was off 2½@2¼c; December corn shows a loss of 1⅞c; oats are off ¼c and provisions 2½@12½c.

Continuous decline marked trading in the wheat pit. At the opening the market was influenced by the indifferent tone of cables, foreign grain markets being lower in the face of a fair advance here yesterday. Another influence that contributed even more to the initial weakness, was a report from Argentina stating that prevailing excellent weather insured a bumper crop of wheat. In this connection the fact was pointed out that there was no diminution shown in the movement of the crop in the northwest, receipts today being much larger than for the corresponding day last week. Selling was general at the start, and opening prices were at a loss, December being down ⅝c at $1.09⅝. May was off ⅛@¼c to ⅝@¼c at $1.10⅝@1.11⅛. Houses with northwestern connections were prominent among the sellers. Several large local longs also had plenty of wheat for sale. Predictions of showers in the west increased the desire of many traders not to carry any wheat over Sunday. There was no let up to the selling pressure throughout the day, prices declining almost uninterruptedly on a lack of any material demand. The decline brought out numerous stop loss orders. Just before the close, December sold at $1.08⅛, a fall of 2⅜c from last night's closing figures. May went down to $1.09. December closed at $1.08⅝, May at $1.09¾. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 39,125 bushels. Primary receipts were 1,178,100 bushels, compared with 1,350,700 bushels a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 849 cars, against 602 cars last week and 910 cars a year ago.

The feature of trading in corn was heavy liquidation of December, resulting in a sharp decline in the price of that delivery. Weakness of wheat had much influence in bringing out the selling orders, but prospects of greatly increased local receipts were a factor of equal importance. Lower cables and good weather aided the bears. December opened ⅜@½c lower at 49¼@49½c, sold off to 48c and closed at the bottom. May ranged between 45⅞@47¼c and 45⅝c and closed at the low point. Local receipts were 513 cars, with two of contract grade.

A remarkably steady tone prevailed in the oats market, considering the weakness of other grains. Commission houses and cash houses were fair bidders, but offerings were very light. December opened unchanged at 28⅜c, sold off to 28⅛c and closed at the low point. After ranging between 31@31¼@31⅜c, May closed at 31c. Local receipts were 32 cars.

Provisions were affected by the slump in wheat and corn, an easier tone being manifested throughout the session. At the close January pork was down 12½c at $12.47½. Lard and ribs were each 2½c lower, at $7.00 and $6.47½, respectively.

Foreign Money Markets.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Money was in fair request in the market today. Discounts were firmer, owing to the outflow of bullion to Egypt and the continued German demand for bar gold. Much discount business goes to the Bank of England, owing to the high rates in the open market. Prices on the stock exchange were firm and trading was inactive. The abnormal rise in Mexican rails was much talked of and the markets were pleased at the prospect of Mexican currency being placed on a stable basis. Consols improved; home rails were firm; Americans reflected the relapse in New York; the movements were narrow on either side of parity, small gains predominating; the market closed quiet. Foreigners were steady; dealings in the new Japanese loan were active; much satisfaction was expressed at the seat of the American issue; Imperial Japanese government 6s of 1904 were quoted at 95. Kaffirs closed animated and buoyant; Chartereds were strong, rising a quarter point on the company issuing a statement announcing the discovery of gold near Salisbury, the assays yielding three ounces to the ton. Consols for money, 88⅛; consols for account, 88⅛; bar silver steady, 26¼d an ounce; money, 2@2½ per cent; rate of discount, short bills, 3 per cent; three months' bills, 3 per cent.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—Prices on the bourse today were slightly weaker and the transactions were small; exchange on London, 20 marks 36¼ pfgs. for checks; exchange on London, short bills, 4 per cent; three months' bills, 4¼ per cent.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—The tone on the bourse today was very firm; Internationals had an upward tendency; Russian Imperial 4s were quoted at 94.60 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 505; the private rate of discount was 2 7-16 per cent. Three per cent rentes, 94 francs 95 centimes for the account; exchange on London, 25 francs 14½ centimes for checks.

SAYS GARDEN OF EDEN TALE IS A BABYLONIAN MYTH

In course of his address on "A Jewish View of Death," delivered before congregation Rodeph Shalom, yesterday, the Rev. Dr. J. Leonard Levy said in part:

Among the people of Israel death is not regarded as the consequence of Adam's sin. Long before the appearance of man on this planet death occurred, and it would seem to be a peculiar commentary on the acts of a just God to visit all mankind with punishment because of Adam's sin, especially when Adam was a myth, as the Garden of Eden story is a legend borrowed from Babylonian sources, as the modern critics teach.

Death is not a matter the introduction of which can be explained by Babylonian myth or theological hair-splittings. To us it is as natural a phenomenon as life. It has often been remarked that the Old Testament is singularly silent on this all-important matter. Where we would expect to find words of hope and consolation, we are confronted by an almost complete disregard of the question.

What is death? What does it mean for the departed? How shall we conduct ourselves in the hour of our affliction? These are questions which enter into the life of every one of us since "there is no man living but must see death." To some, death means the end. To others, death means the beginning of a life and if Judaism has not insisted with greater force on this aspect of the case, it is not because the doctrine of immortality was not accepted by Israel, but because it was the manifest purpose of the Jewish religion to have man live in the best sense while living, and to trust his God to care for him in the other life.

The Jews feel their loss when dear ones go just as keenly as others, and bear their sorrows just as bravely as others, but they have been distinguished by a remarkably sane and sweet manner of viewing this all-important question of immortality.

We journey on the railroad and we trust ourselves unquestionably to the tender mercies of the engineer. As we journey over the earth, shall we not have faith that the Creator of the forces of nature can be trusted to guide us and guard us? We journey over the earth and we trust our dear ones and ourselves to the care of the Captain, feeling that all is well when He is on the bridge! Here is this ship of a world sailing through space and our Father is on the bridge; shall we not say in undying faith and in child-like confidence that whether it be weal or woe that meets us, all is well?

Revival Meetings Begun.

Last evening in the Second United Brethren church, Braddock, the Rev. C. C. Miller, the pastor, opened a series of revival meetings, which will continue throughout the coming week. A series of revival services was also started last evening in the Methodist Episcopal church at Wilmerding, of which the Rev. Oliver H. P. Graham is pastor.

PRESBYTERIAN VIEWS ON ROMAN CATHOLICISM

"Roman Catholicism; its Strongest Points—A Friendly Presbyterian View," was the sermon topic of the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young in the Bijou theater yesterday morning before the congregation of the Second Presbyterian church. The pastor said in part:

Religious prejudice, like the deadly upas tree of Java, whose atmosphere blights every living thing around it, has spread its curse for centuries over Christendom. If the forces of heart and brain and body that have been stifled or slain during the past three and a quarter centuries by hatred between Protestant and Catholic had been devoted to evangelizing the world, who can doubt that the whole of humanity would by this time be within the fold of Christ? Of mankind's 1,600,000,000 some 480,000,000 are classed as Christians and of these probably 5,000,000 come under the heading of the smallest sects and almost 100,000,000 are reckoned to the Greek church, including the Russian; about 144,000,000 to the Roman Catholic.

Whether Protestant or Catholic is growing fastest at this present hour few, if any, students, can certainly decide. Catholicism is gaining ground, influence, popularity in America with unwonted rapidity; yet is losing lately in France; advancing unusually in parts of Austria and falling behind a little in parts of Germany.

Apart from doctrinal discussions we may be sure the Catholic church secures the favor of the people by its splendid care of the suffering and needy. Criticise, if you will, its theological tenets, but the gates of hell themselves can not prevail against such characters as Ulfilas, missionary to the Goths; Ansker, apostle to the Danes; St. Patrick and Columba to the Irish and St. Francis Xavier to India and Japan.

Long as the Catholic church keeps producing the character it does, long as its priests and sisters render such unselfish services in hospitals and among the wretched, opposition to the Catholic church will be defeated.

I want to stir up a contest between Catholics and Protestants—this contest, a rivalry to see which can save the most drunkards and save most from becoming drunkards, which will help the most needy and keep most from becoming needy, which will win the most people to Christ and hold them won, which will be most generous to the other. I yearn to be the arch conspritor in bringing on this contest and only this.

MEN WERE CAUGHT WHILE STEALING NEWSPAPERS

Officer John Kornbauer early yesterday morning detected Dan Connors of 91 Mulberry alley and Pat Sullivan of 408 Willow street, in the act of stealing a large bundle of Sunday newspapers from the Union News Company in Liberty avenue, near the Union station. He locked them up as suspicious persons and Magistrate Kirby held them over for a further investigation.

Good Producers Stimulate Hopes of Many Operators

Operators in the lower southwest fields met with better results during the past week than has been their experience for some months. Not since the development of the Wick pool in Tyler county, was there so many good producers found in various localities.

The well to attract the most attention was the South Penn Oil Company's No. 2 on the C. S. Pitzer farm, located in the new 30-foot development west of Mannington, Marion county. Gushers have been so scarce that this one, when drilled into the pay, caused quite a flurry. This well was drilled into the pay last Tuesday afternoon and started to flow at the rate of 15 barrels an hour. It was not touched again until Wednesday afternoon when it was drilled a little deeper into the pay and the production at once increased to 70 barrels an hour. For the ensuing 24 hours the well placed 1,093 barrels to its credit. The following 24 hours it produced 700 barrels and from Friday to Saturday morning, 485 barrels, or 2,277 barrels in three days.

The location of the well is such as to not show an extension to the producing limits of the development. West of the gusher 1,200 feet is the Delmar Oil Company's good producer on the Hays farm, and 800 feet to the east of it is the South Penn company's No. 4 Pitzer. The last named has been in for about three months and is still producing more than 80 barrels a day. It at no time was a large producer. When at its best it did not produce more than 300 barrels a day. To the west the Delmar company's test on the Hays farm started at about 600 barrels a day. Four wells have now been completed in the pool and the lightest was the South Penn company's No. 3 on the Pitzer farm, producing now about 40 barrels a day.

Development work in the district is quite active and all interested are anxious to reach the sand with the wells now drilling. The South Penn company is drilling Nos. 4 and 5 on the Pitzer and has made the location for No. 6. The same company is drilling two on the Batty and three on the Baker farms. Trees & Benedum are drilling four on the J. L. Holden farm and the Delmar Oil Company is drilling Nos. 2, 3 and 4 on the Hays farm.

There are other wells drilling in the district, but somewhat remote from present developments. For the next few months the 30-foot development promises to be the stellar attraction in the lower southwest. There will be more producers found in the district and those closest to the big producers will be the first due and it is only a question of how much they will produce when drilled in.

At Fairview the fifth sand development, located in the same county, furnished a good producer and a duster. The latter is the second test on the Isaac Ammons farm and was expected to show a northeast extension to the pool. It was drilled through all sands and to a depth of 3,050 feet and found no oil or gas.

The good producer is Iseman & Leonard's No. 6 on the Clark Tennant farm and the first 24 hours after it was drilled into the pay produced 285 barrels. This is one of the best wells that has been found in the fifth sand. There is considerable work under way in the district.

Near Bula, Battelle district, Monongalia county, the Minor Oil and Gas Company made a good investment when it drilled down its old Big Injun gasser on the Josephus Thomas farm and got a 150-barrel producer in the Gordon. The good results of drilling deeper will likely be the incentive for more work of the same kind in that locality.

Near Downs, station, Marion county, the Fairmont and Grafton Gas Company got a very creditable producer when it drilled in its test on the J. L. Morgan farm. The well produced 75 barrels the first 24 hours after it was drilled into the Gordon pay.

More than a mile to the southwest and in advance of the Littleton district, Wetzel county, McDermott & Co. are drilling in the sand at a test well on the J. W. Snowalter farm that is attracting considerable attention. When last heard from they were drilling in the top of the Gordon, but not deep enough for the pay. Should this well come in a good producer it will show a large extension to the development and furnish room for many wells.

In the Pine Grove extension F. H. Jennings & Bros. drilled in their test on the W. W. Lemasters farm and found a producer good for 100 barrels a day. In the Smithfield district, same county, the Southern Oil Company & Greenlee have drilled their test on the S. F. McDougal farm into the Big Injun and have a promising producer from the first pay.

The foregoing comprises the important discoveries in the deep sand districts during the week with the exception of a freak drilled in by T. N. Barnsdall, located on Klincheloe creek, Lewis county. This is fifth sand producing territory, but when the No. 3 on the McKinley farm was drilled into the Big Lime it made three flows and has the distinction of being the first well in the development to get oil in that formation. Unfortunately the tools were lost in the hole soon after the Big Lime was tapped and they have not been recovered.

On the east side of Tyler county, in Ellsworth district, there has been considerable test work completed during the year. The largest number of the tests proved small producers or dusters. During the week the Southern Oil Company had a little better success when it drilled in its test on the N. Ankrom farm and got a 50-barrel producer in the Keener formation.

The Yellow Creek district in Calhoun county completed the usual number of wells during the week, but there was a decrease in the average productiveness. A very few wells are starting in advance of developments in the hope of finding an extension. The fact that the late wells have come in light would indicate that developments are approaching the producing limits.
